California Wins They Strangled Her Mussolini's Daughter Tearful, but Happy

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1926, Hearst Publishing Co.

THE PACIFIC COAST beat the Riviera yesterday. Elizabeth Ryan and Mary K. Browne, both of California, playing in doubles, defeated Suzanne Lenglen and Didi Vlasto, both French. Seventeen thousand spectators saw the California girls win, 8—6, 9—7, 6—2.

However, Mademoiselle Lenglen will get revenge when the time comes. She is undoubtedly an unbeatable wonder for the present, when at her best, and represents admirably the power of the French nation.

MRS. LOUISE CALVERT, thirty-two years old, was hanged by the neck in England yesterday and strangled to death. Her three children, including one baby, fortunately, did not understand what was happening. The woman protested to the last her innocence of the charge that she had strangled her landlady.

The hangman has now strangled her. The landlady and British justice are avenged.

BEFORE THEY hanged her, the condemned woman said that she was to become a mother. British law does not allow an unborn child to be hanged, but doctors said the woman was mistaken, and she was strangled.

That law is foolish. Better to hang an unborn child than wait and send it through life as "the child of a woman that was hanged." You may accuse hanging a woman, but how does a civilized nation excuse disgracing her children who have committed no crime?

The usual answer, "That's the mother's lookout," is worthy of an Apache.

IT IS SAID, perhaps without authority, that Mussolini plans to marry his daughter to the Italian Crown Prince.

The daughter is a fine young Italian girl, with her father's powerful chin, and the Italian royal family would be strengthened by such a marriage, and it wouldn't be anything new.

Mussolini is no more of an upstart than Bonaparte was, and the Emperor of Austria, proud head of the ancient Hapsburgs, was glad to marry his daughter to Bonaparte as his second wife.

NEWS OF FINANCE, cheerful as usual. Yesterday freight car loadings exceeded all records for five years, passing the million mark four weeks running. Those fearful securities, the railroad stocks, seem to be doing well.

New Jersey Central, which already paid 8 per cent. to stockholders, added an extra $2 to yesterday's quarterly dividend, making four dollars for three months, a rate of 16 per cent. a year.

THE LEHIGH & NEW ENGLAND road was leased to the Reading at a rental of more than a million a year for 999 years. In 999 years the railroad of today will be as much a transportation curiosity as the camel that carried the Queen of Sheba. In 99 years there will be no pas-

Women Faint in Tunnel Panic

BABE RUTH IN JAIL AND OUT AGAIN

NINE WOMEN FAINT ON BLAZING CARS IN E. BOSTON TUNNEL

Seventy-five passengers became excited and nine women fainted today when an insulator on the third rail in the East Boston Tunnel broke, the third rail short-circuited and two cars caught fire.

Flame and smoke enveloped the two two-car trains traversing the block between the Atlantic avenue and Maverick stations, one bound for Boston, the other for East Boston.

One car in each of the trains took fire and the passengers on both trains rushed about in an attempt to get through the doors.

They were calmed with difficulty and the nine women that fainted were revived by [illegible] chief engineer of the Car Control Company, East Boston, and the tunnel to the East Boston end.

two nuns of the Notre Dame order attached to the Church of the Holy Redeemer, East Boston.

Crews of both trains rushed through the smoke-choked tunnel to emergency sand depots and extinguished the flames with the sand.

The coolness and calm of the nuns as they reassured the panicked passengers had a speedy effect.

When the insulator was replaced and the cables repaired the cars proceeded on their way.

THEIR PRAYERS ARE ANSWERED

Roberta and Rolf McPherson, children of Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, who was kidnaped and held for ransom, are overjoyed at news of her safety. They prayed daily for her return for the month she was missing.

2 BOSTON MEN AMONG VICTIMS OF 'RUNNERS'; BODIES CAST INTO SEA

Washington, June 25 (I.N.S.).—A number of government secret agents, employed in prohibition work, are mysteriously missing after "under cover" operations against the rum smugglers off the Atlantic Coast, it was learned here today.

Among those reported missing are several New England men, including two Boston agents.

Prohibition officials have launched a quiet, but widespread investigation, to ascertain the truth of reports that have reached them that the agents were slain after they had shipped from the Bahamas and Caribbean as members of the crews of rum-running ships, and their bodies thrown overboard.

The plan of having to these agents contrive to get aboard the rum runners as members of the crew at the ports of departure for the United States was conceived some months ago, and it has resulted in a number of ships being run directly into the arms of the Coast Guardsmen along the Atlantic seaboard.

The work was voluntary, for it

WOMAN LEADS HUNT FOR HER KIDNAPERS

Douglas, Ariz., June 25.—In the desolate desert wastes lying south of here in Mexico, the search continued today for the place where Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angles evangelist, says she was held captive by three persons who kidnaped her at Ocean Park, Cal., on May 18.

Mrs. McPherson herself joined Los Angeles and Douglas officers in the hunt through the forests of cacti, the mesquite and the grease-wood for some trace of the place, in the belief that information as to her alleged abductors might be obtained.

The evangelist was released from the hospital here to aid in the search. She made a ten-mile trip into Mexico with Chief of Detectives Herman Cline of Los Angeles, Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan of Los Angeles, Chief of Police Percy Bowden of Douglas, her

BABE RUTH SCORES HIT WHEN HE VISITS JAIL

Battering Babe Ruth, sometimes known as the Bad Boy of Baseball, went to Charles Street Jail today, but they sent him away with a smile.

No, Arthur, the Big Babe didn't take a rap. On the contrary, he went as a guest of Sheriff John A. Kellher, and the boys in the can sure gave him a tumble.

The Bambino was as affected by his reception that almost tearfully he assured the sheriff that if he were ever knocked off in any other county in this State he'd apply for a transfer to Charles street.

The visit was made under the guidance of Court Officer Arthur Crowley, son of superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, who has been a pal of the slugger for twelve years.

The party was met at the [illegible] office by Sheriff Kellher, Deputy Sheriff John Downing, who has charge of the prisoners, and Deputy

FRIGHTENED THRONG CALMED BY PRIEST

Mundelein, Ills., June 25.—In the greatest transportation achievement of all time, approximately 1,000,000 participants in the closing religious exercises of the Eucharistic Congress had been moved from here on their way to Chicago before 2 a. m. today.

Scores of visitors were either prostrated by the heat or had succumbed to the crush of the great exodus but at the emergency hospitals where they were treated it was reported that no one had been seriously injured.

A crowd of 200,000 that jammed the gates of St. Mary's-on-the-Lake, where the closing ceremonies of the congress were held, became panicky in trying to reach outgoing trains. Women and children were trampled to

QUIZ EX-CABINET MAN AT 'SLUSH FUND' PROBE

Washington, June 25 (A.P.).—William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor under Woodrow Wilson and now erstwhile nominee for Senator in Pennsylvania, was questioned today by the Senate Campaign Funds Committee.

The witness said his personal expense in the primary campaign amounted to $58.81. He added that he was associated in the campaign with Hiram E. Porter, one of the defeated candidates for Governor, and that their campaign committee spent about $10,000.

"Four thousand of that has been paid," said Wilson, "and $6,000 has been obligated to be paid later."

Picking up an itemized statement filed by Wilson, Chairman Reed passed over it smilingly, and said:

"I see some startling accounts for meals at the William Penn [illegible] in Pittsburgh. Here is one [illegible] cents, another of 90 cents, [illegible] of 70 cents, another of 70 cents, still another of 76 cents, [illegible] as low as 40 for a restaurant.

"Did you have waiters' polls at $10 a day or $5 a day?" asked Senator King, Dem., Utah.

"Not that I know of," said, "we got only about $4.5 [illegible] not very many watchers [illegible] employed at that rate."

Wilson disclosed that since his nomination he had declined a place on the railroad mediation board, recently appointed by President Coolidge.

BOBBY JONES SEIZES BRITISH OPEN CROWN

St. Anne's, England, June 25 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones, American golfing marvel, today added the British open crown to his long list of trophies. He completed the 72-hole grind with an aggregate of 291 strokes.

Al Watrous, Grand Rapids professional, was second with 293. Walter Hagen tied with George Von Elm for third, with 295, in an All-American finish.

The trophy goes to the United States for the fifth time. It was first captured by a golfer from America in 1921, when Jock Hutchison won. Walter Hagen was victorious in 1922 and again in 1924, while Long Jim Barnes won last year.

SIZZLING HEAT NEAR ASSERTS WEATHER MAN

The rout of pessimistic weather prophets was on at noon today, when the official thermometer in the weather bureau registered 81 above, a degree higher than the maximum mercury mark of yesterday.

Since summer made its calendar entry into these parts three days ago, a cumulative rise in the mercury tube has been taking places and with that process apparently still in operation the weather man predicts the climatic spell of sizzling heat is still in the offing.

The temperature today began to climb at 7 o'clock from the 60 mark on the thermometer to 72 above at 9 o'clock whence it has rapidly risen to the high but normal mark at noon.

"WHITE COLLAR BANDIT" WAR SAVES N. Y. MILLIONS

Troy, N. Y., June 26 (I.N.S.).—Attorney - General Ottinger's drive against "white collar bandits" has saved New York State investors approximately $200,000,000 in eighteen months, Deputy Attorney-General Borden H. Mills told the State secretaries' conference.

Crimson Scores Double Victory in Crew Races

Harvard crews won two of the races at New London today. The freshmen and the Crimson junior varsity easily defeated their Yale rivals.

The official time for the Harvard freshman was 11 minutes flat, while Yale crossed the line 12 2-5 seconds later. Harvard's time in the junior varsity race was 10 minutes 36 3-5 seconds, Yale's 10 minutes 43 2-5 seconds.

The third and final race of the day will be started at 7 o'clock tonight. (Full details of this morning's races on page 16.)

ULLIAN FAILS TO APPEAR FOR SENTENCE

Attorney Nathan Ullian, convicted of bribing Boston police officers, was not at the courthouse when due to be sentenced today, but it is understood that he had an appointment with the district attorney for later in the day. The Grand Jury is scheduled to convene on Monday in special session to dispose of "some loose ends." District Attorney O'Brien declined to say that the Grand Jury is coming in to further consider the so-called "take-the-rap" cases. He smiled and shrugged his shoulders —and that was all.

MELROSE BOYS HALTED IN TOUR OF THE WORLD

A proposed tour around the world was abruptly halted when police of Quincy took into custody three Melrose youths today. They are Robert Doherty, thirteen; John Moriarty, fifteen, and Christopher Mahan, thirteen.

FLYING CAPTAIN DONS OVERSEAS CAP; ARRESTED

Philadelphia, June 25 (A.P.).—Captain Harry C. Drayton, Philadelphia, overseas army pilot and commanding officer of the First Observation Squadron, Mitchel Field, was arrested today for wearing an overseas cap.

Two Department of Justice agents declared the cap was a violation of army regulations, and accompanied him to a police station. After a heated argument of an hour, Captain Drayton was released. He flew here from Mitchell Field.

EVANGELIST LEADS POSSE IN THRILLING DESERT HUNT

mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and William Fraley McCafferty, editor of the Douglas Dispatch.

SEARCH IN DESERT.

Mrs. McPherson said she recognized many spots where she had passed in her wild flight from her abductors Tuesday night.

Chief Cline of Los Angeles says that he is "firmly convinced" that Mrs. MacPherson was kidnaped.

"There is nothing to make me disbelieve Mrs. McPherson's version of her abduction from the California beach," he said. This statement followed a day spent in interviewing the evangelist and a trip into the desert country south of here with her.

Deputy District Attorney Ryan had no announcement to make after his investigation.

BIG POSSE ON TRAIL.

The sheriff's office reports that officers from the California coast to East Texas are watching the border for a trace of the two men and a woman. The Mexican border patrol is sweeping the country under instructions from Mexico City to do all in their power to find the supposed abductors. It is estimated that the Mexican government in its various law enforcement branches has a hundred men in the field working on the case.

Mrs. McPherson collapsed in the hospital during the excitement attending the arrival of her mother. She later revived and was able to leave the hospital today. She expects to return to Los Angeles Saturday.

Advices from members of Angelus Temple reported that the train would be met outside the city limits by a huge delegation of her followers, and that the railroad station would be banked and festooned with flowers.

Other messages stated that a great service of thanksgiving would be held at Angelus Temple Sunday, when Mrs. McPherson plans to appear again as head of the organization.

In investigation on the Mexican side of the border, Chief Cline today followed a route mapped out for him in detail by Mrs. McPherson and members of the posse who found traces of her flight. From Douglas the investigators traveled one mile south to Agua Prieta on the international boundary.

From Agua Prieta Mrs. McPherson's footprints were traced for one and one-half miles along the boundary fence to the slaughter house where the evangelist aroused a butcher at 1 a. m. The footprints follow a road leading eastward from the town.

They continued eastward nine miles from the slaughter house. At a distance of 200 yards from the boundary fence.

Suddenly the trail led away from the fence to a rural house and returned toward the fence. From this point the trail is obliterated. Mrs. McPherson stated she reached the rural house from Niggerhead Dome Mountain after a long walk of many miles with the sun always at her back.

Evangelist Worked for Years Around Boston

Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, woman evangelist of Los Angeles who was captured by bandits and who finally escaped after harrowing experience, preached as a girl of seventeen, in Hyde Park, when her dynamic personality and poignant epigrams drew a host of followers.

As a mere girl, inspired by an ardent religious fervor she went up and down the country from Maine to Florida, exhorting her followers, and multiplying them as she went. She first became known to Boston when she took up her stand at Hyde Park, conducting a revival in which her remarkable personality at once made itself felt. Even then at the tender age of seventeen, her command of language gripped the multitude.

As her fame grew apace throughout the country she became well known in Massachusetts and New England. One of her latest New England revival campaigns was held in 1917. She staged several meetings in Washburn, Me., and at the close of a campaign in Washington returned to Framingham and conducted revivals in different parts of Massachusetts.

RUTH IN JAIL! -AS GUEST

Sheriff John Casey. Then, accompanied by jail officers, a tour of inspection was started, including a visit to the kitchen, mess hall and bakeshop.

Ruth sampled the fish dinner with string beans and home-made bread, prepared for the prisoners, and declared, feelingly, he had eaten worse. The tour concluded with a view of the brand new hospital ward, absolutely up to date in every way, which presented such a cheerful appearance that Babe said he could enjoy a stay there, particularly if they could rid him of charlie horse.

POSES WIT HAN INMATE.

The big event of the day, however, was the visit to the jail yard, where the prisoners ,including "Count Paul Monje," were exercising. When the mammoth proportions of the Lambino hove in sight the prisoners cheered.

They cheered again when the Babe, with a huge bat it had been necessary to send for, gave a demonstration of the proper method of handling the wagon tongue. Then he posed with one of the inmates, to show his heart was in the right place, and the party was over.

Cardinal O'Connell To Bless Shrine

By JAMES WALSH
(Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American With Boston Pilgrims at Eucharistic Congress.)

On Board S. S. South American en route to Midland, Ont., June 25.—Happy but tired, sanctified by participation in the most magnificent religious ceremonial ever held in any country, the Boston pilgrims under the leadership of His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, are now preparing to take part with the head of the archdiocese of Boston in another great religious event—the consecration of the beautiful shrine erected at Midland, Ontario, in honor of the Jesuit martyrs of North America.

James Walsh

This will take place in the Canadian settlement tomorrow morning and promises to be very imposing. The Jesuit Fathers of Toronto, who caused to be erected and who are in charge of the shrine, have made preparations to take care of thousands of people from all over Canada as well as a larger number of pilgrims returning from the Eucharistic Congress at Chicago.

Cardinal O'Connell will celebrate low mass at the shrine. He will be attended by Monsignors Haberlin and Splaine as chaplains of honor.

The Boston pilgrims continue to enjoy excellent health and most of their conversation is about the dazzling spectacle of the solemn procession of the Blessed Eucharist which brought to a glorious close the sublime ceremony.

The reception to the Cardinal at Waukegan was splendid. City officials, the president and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, the judiciary Catholic and Protestant clergymen and fourth degree Knights of Columbus, including William C. Frost of Boston, supreme trustee, and Edward J. Brandon of Cambridge, state deputy for Massachusetts, were on hand to greet him.

Following the ceremony at Midland the Boston party will sail for Buffalo, where the Cardinal will leave immediately by motor for Boston. The pilgrims will visit Niagara Falls for a day and a night, returning to Boston next Tuesday.

FEAR HUB DRY AGENTS SLAIN

was realized that it involved great risk.

The main supply bases for the smugglers lie to the southeast in the Bahamas, Cuba, and the West Indies. It was to these points that the dry agents were dispatched.

Prohibition officials are confident that several of these agents have been detected. How many they do not know.

The hazardous method of getting on the inside of the smuggling rings was made necessary, officials said, by the fact the United States is not yet permitted to place special agents openly in the principal supply bases to report on the activities of the rum runners.

It is this situation that Gen. L. C. Andrews hopes to remedy when he goes to London next month to negotiate a special agreement with the British government whereby this government would be permitted to place agents in the Bahamas and other British possessions to check the movement of liquor to the United States.

APOLOGY GIVEN EX-ENVOY TO WASHINGTON

London, June 25 (A.P.).—Prince and Princess Bibesco of Rumania were tendered an apology in court today by the London Express Newspaper, Ltd., for statements published concerning the Prince's recall from his post as minister in Washington.

The story, published Sunday, said Prince Bibesco, in his capacity of minister to Washington, withheld assistance from M. Titulesco in the Rumanian debt negotiations because of personal animosity. The story also said the Princess lent herself to this view and abused leading Americans and indulged in malicious gossip.

The Bibescos brought suit. After the circumstances of the story were outlined by the Prince's attorney today, the publishing company expressed unqualified regret for the article and said it was satisfied there was no basis in fact for the imputations.

The story suggested that there was a long standing quarrel between Prince Bibesco and M. Titulesco and that the Prince, although it was his duty to assist in the Rumanian debt negotiations, deliberately withheld his help. It also was suggested that this deliberate neglect of duty resulted in Rumania getting a worse settlement than she might have received.

and the situation was getting beyond control of soldiers and police when priests who had attended the congress mounted tops of cars and other elevations. They quieted the milling thousands and directed the removal of women and children who had been overcome.

At emergency hospitals on the grounds it was stated there had been no deaths. None of the scores of women who fainted were in a serious condition. Most of them recovered fully 15 minutes after they had been removed to the hospitals.

Harry Lehr's Trial Separation Lasts Two Days

KEEP WIRES HUMMING MAKING UP

Both Happy Now, Plan Second Honeymoon at Close of Paris Season

Paris, June 25 (Universal).—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Symes Lehr have won the blue ribbon for the shortest trial separation on record. Incidentally, the reconciliation which took place this week after only two days of separation sets at rest a rumor which has persistently circulated on both sides of the Atlantic that Mrs. Lehr intended to invoke the jurisdiction of the Paris courts to sue her husband, the well-known man about town.

NO SECRET FROM FRIENDS.

That all was not well with the Lehr household has been no secret to their friends for a long time, but none of her intimates credited Mrs. Lehr with any intention to follow the new society habit of preceding any legal steps with a trial separation.

It all came to a head last week when, after a large reception, at which all the social register was represented, Mrs. Lehr suddenly left home and installed herself at one of the principal hotels here.

Completely taken by surprise, Harry could not at first believe that his wife actually did not intend to return, but once he ascertained that fact, according to friends, he refused to go out of the house the whole time his wife was absent. He declared he did not want to run the risk of finding the door of his wife's home shut to him.

CELEBRATING WITH FLOWERS

After hours at the telephone, he succeeded in locating her and by long pleading effected a reconciliation which their friends here and in America are celebrating with an avalanche of flowers and cablegrams.

Immediately after the end of the Paris season, Mr. and Mrs. Lehr will spend their second honeymoon at Deauville, La Touquet and other smart seaside resorts.

'ARMY BASE' IN PETITION WAR FOR SLAYERS

"TILL THE SWITCH IS SPRUNG WE'LL FIGHT FOR LIFE"
The Devereaux family and McLaughlin's sister work untiringly on petitions to save the three carbarn slayers, sentenced to die in the chair in August. Left to right, Theresa Devereaux, William Devereaux, Mrs. Mona McNeil, sister of McLaughlin, and Mrs. Sarah Devereaux, mother of the man who says he fired the fatal shots. They are in the Devereaux home, No. 72 Gardner street, Allston.

'NO MURDER IN HEART OF BOY'

Parents Refuse to Believe Devereaux Fired With Intent to Kill

"My boy took all the blame when sentenced, but he never intended to kill Ferneau, the watchman, or anyone. He has told his father and me this over and over again to impress us, his parents at least, that he did not have murder in his heart that night, regardless of what the public may think. And he was heartily sorry right after it happened."

Mrs. Sarah Devereaux, mother of John J. Devereaux, one of the three youths condemned to die in the week of August 8 for the Waltham carbarn murder, broke down several times during the interview at her home, No. 72 Gardner street, Allston.

The dining room in the Devereaux suite had been converted into a sort of office where a youngster son and daughter and a neighbor were busy mailing scores of petitions for commutation of young Devereaux's death penalty to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Devereaux, her eyes moist, was assisting, and every now and then her husband would pull himself together and lend a hand. It was grim business for such a highly respected family. Devereaux's father had been a deputy in State prison for close to fifteen years.

"It staggered me to learn my boy was in this," said Mr. Devereaux. "Joe in his talks tells me I have nothing to blame myself for, but that's small consolation. He even reminded me how I used to impress upon him and his brother the misery of prison life and of how prisoners counted every day until they got out.

"It was as he said, he shot in his excitement toward the ground. With such a home, why he should have taken part in such an affair is beyond me. Product of the times. That's the only way I can account for it. Heinlein and McLaughlin, too, couldn't wish for finer mothers.

"They shouldn't die. Life imprisonment would be punishment enough. I don't find fault with the jury. The court officials in East Cambridge and Sheriff Fairbairn and all of his men at the jail couldn't be kinder or more considerate.

"Instead of being drafted, my son enlisted in the United States Navy at the age of 16. Since his discharge from the service he has not been the same mentally at times. At my request he was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital in Boston for examination, once in October, 1921, and again in June, 1925. He is now receiving 25 per cent. nervous disability, which would seem to indicate that he is not normal so far as his mentality is concerned."

Slain Wife

JEALOUSY VICTIM
Amorous letter sent to Mrs. Sydney E. Brewster by an admirer in Mexico so infuriated her husband he killed her and himself.

SLAYER IS CRAZED BY LOVE NOTE TO WIFE

Sole Motive for Her Murder and the Suicide of Rich New Yorker

New York, June 25.—Jealousy that goaded him into an uncontrollable rage, when he discovered a torn love letter addressed to his young wife, by another man, impelled Sydney E. Brewster, wealthy realtor and socially prominent, to slay her and then take his own life at Glen Head, L. I.

At the inquest into the double tragedy the fragments of the letter were pieced together and read into the record.

District Attorney Edwards and Coroner Huntington decided that the missive, found by Brewster, was the one and only motive that caused him to shoot his wife, the former Frances Tracy Lyon, and then turn the weapon on himself.

The identity of the letter writer is cloaked under the pet name or nickname "Rad," and the letter was postmarked Parral Chit., Mexico, May 28 last.

It was not extremely amorous in tone, but is of a poetic sort and plainly indicated that the writer was deeply in love with Mr. Brewster.

PERHAPS LOVE SONG.

Beneath the signature was penned a seven note bar of music in sight time. The letter read:

"Tracy Dearest:

"I am just back from a long trip on mule back in the mountains in Durango. I found your letter and this is just a line or two to catch the post which goes out very soon. I'm happy to have your letter and to know about you for I have thought and held you in my mind so much and so long. You must have felt some of it across the miles between us.

WORDS MISSING.

"I was glad (several words missing) folk attributed the poor lonely old Tamare to you. You know little could a man stand when a girl appears cruel in a staid manner. I have seen lots of queer creatures here and there, but no birds or animals equal to our Santo Amente friend.

"Soon I will write you more of myself and my doings. I am lonely and miserable as can be and just have one thought and that to get away where I can see you even for a little.

"Oh, I have missed you so and everything you mean. Of course, I knew I should, but never dreamed how hard it was going to be. You dear, stray girl, Tracy, whose name the wind sings in the trees and whose face lingers in the depth of twilight that clouds these old hills. Are you well and quite all right? I wonder.

"All my thought is with you and of you and I reach again for your hands across the miles between us. I must hurry this. Please let me know very soon about you, will you, dear? Always your RAD."

BOY SMOTHERS AIR IN ESCAPE

Lowell, June 25.—Leonard Higgins, thirteen, of Salem street, Lowell, runaway inmate of the Middlesex County Training School, is dying in St. John's Hospital, after being taken from an air passage in police headquarters, into which he crawled in an effort to escape.

Smothered by her stagnant air, and choked by dirt as he crawled along the passage, hardly a foot high, the boy was found unconscious by police, who dug him out of a pile of brick, dirt and mortar.

Higgins, one of fifteen youths who escaped from the training school, was captured by police and locked up in cell No. 20 at police headquarters.

When Lieutenant John Freeman went to the cell this morning to verify the boy's name, he found the cell empty. A hasty investigation showed that the boy had managed to get into a 12-inch square air shaft opening in the ceiling of the cell.

AIR MAIL IS TO BOOM BOSTON

A great industrial and commercial expansion will result in Boston through inauguration July 1 of the air mail route between New York and the Hub, it is predicted by Edward P. Warner, professor of aeronautical engineering at Technology, in an article in "Current Affairs," official publication of the Chamber.

"When the Boston-New York Air Mail opens," says Professor Warner, "Boston will be in direct aerial connection with a majority of the country's important industrial districts.

"At least one business day will be saved on letters to the Middle West and Southwest, and even correspondence to Southern points with which there is not direct connection with New York can also benefit by the making of train connections for which a letter would have to be despatched from Boston some hours earlier by rail than by air.

"An air mail line between Boston and New York, taken by itself, would have far less significance than has such a line connected to others extending through as large a part of the country as is already covered."

Dying in Crash

The child life toll exacted by gasoline is mounting. Olga Milinski, 9, of No. 6 Wall street, North End, is dying at Haymarket Relief Hospital from injuries sustained when she was struck by George V. McAvoy's automobile at Commercial and Foster streets.

THUGS ROB TAXI MAN, GET CAB

Joseph Haney of Priesing street, Jamaica Plain, driver for a taxicab company, surrendered his cab to two thugs and gave them $8 early today, when one of the robbers threatened to beat him with a blackjack.

Haney was telling the story to policemen in Dudley street station when word came in that the cab had been abandoned near South Hampton street. The thugs had made a successful getaway. They had driven but a short distance from the scene of the holdup.

The two boarded Haney's cab at Columbus avenue and Dartmouth street. They asked to be driven to Shirley street, Roxbury.

The thugs ordered the cab driver to stop before reaching Shirley street. He did. One of the thugs demanded Haney to hand over his money. The other exhibited a blackjack, held it over Haney's head, and told him to "come across."

After the robbers had pocketed their victim's money, they ordered him to get out of the machine and make no outcry. They drove off in his taxi. Haney walked to the station and reported the robbery.

BARRY FUNERAL AT ST. AIDAN'S

With a large number of prominent men present, the funeral of Thomas J. Barry, Boston attorney, took place today with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Aidan's church, Brookline.

The celebrant was Rev. Dr. John Creagh, pastor; Rev. James Somers was deacon and Rev. Joseph Quigley sub-deacon. The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edward J. Moriarty was in the sanctuary. Burial was at Forest Hills Cemetery.

The bearers, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Joseph A. Conry, Thomas J. Clexton, Frank P. Rogers, Jr., Joseph Lee, Edward A. McLaughlin and Daniel A. Sullivan, were all members of the Chosen Club, of which Attorney Barry was president last year.

Honorary bearers were Clarence H. Carter, classmate of the deceased in English High School, '73; Peter F. McCarren, James J. Casesly of the Boston League of Elks and Thomas H. Ratigan.

Among those present were former Mayor and Mrs. James M. Curley, former Congressman Peter Tague of Charlestown, W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Sheriff John A. Kelliher, Judge Edward L. Logan, Theodore Leggat, Patrick J. Duane of Waltham, James B. Shea, chairman of the park and recreation department, Inspector Harry M. Pierce and Wilham McShane.

The others were Judge Edward Counihan of Cambridge, Leo Leary, Lake Mullen and Joseph H. O'Neil, Jr.

RAIN PRAYERS SAVED CROPS, THEY BELIEVE

Bristol, Tenn., June 25 (I.N.S.).—Many of the religiously inclined persons living near here believe that prayer saved their crops.

Big meetings in which prayers were said for rain were held in several communities near here just before the heavy rains fell this week, saving crops valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

JEALOUSY DRIVES BREWSTER TO MURDER AND SUICIDE

found in a wallet in a pocket of the coat worn by the young husband when he died.

It is believed it was the wife who tore up the missive corresponding the pieces, in a receptacle in the home. Why, and under what circumstances, Brewster came upon the pieces will perhaps never be known, but the authorities feel that immediately after he found the fragments he put them together and learned for the first time in his wedded life that there was another man.

TRAGEDY UNJUSTIFIED.

District Attorney Edwards said:

"I am thoroughly convinced that this is a case in which a terrible tragedy has occurred without justification through the thoughtlessness and foolishness of a man deeply attached to Mrs. Brewster."

It was taken for granted that the District Attorney alluded to the writer of the letter, and not to Brewster.

He continued:

"Coming upon this letter, apparently torn by Mrs. Brewster, and carefully put by her in a receptacle and found by him, has been the probable cause of this tragedy.

"Everybody whom I have spoken to, who knew this girl, has convinced me that she was beyond reproach. In the early investigation into the shooting there was never the slightest hint of scandal in their lives.

"No one had ever heard of another man having entered her life.

"As for Brewster, no woman's name had ever been linked with his since his marriage, as far as the detectives and the District Attorney's staff have been able to learn.

"But we do know that Brewster was quick tempered. I have no doubt this letter explains the terrible tragedy. Therefore, the case is closed."

"Mrs. Frances Tracy Brewster came to her death by reason of a gunshot from a pistol held in the hand of her husband, Sydney Brewster, which shot was fired under the great stress of excitement developed by the circumstances which the authorities have heard and which have been clearly stated on the record by the district attorney. I find that, after killing his wife, Brewster then shot himself through the heart."

START OF TRAGEDY.

The quarrel between the Brewsters which the servants overheard shortly before the shooting is believed to have started when the husband taxed his wife about the "other man" following his discovery of the tell tale letter.

They had had many little spats, relatives and friends told the district attorney, but they were invariably of short duration and were quickly patched up. Many of their squabbles were caused over money matters.

At the inquest yesterday Tracy Lyons, Mrs. Brewster's father, told of a telephone conversation he overheard between his wife and daughter just before the shooting.

"My dogs are burning up and the chief has no sympathy," he said.

Cop's Dogs Afire, He Walks Beat in Bare Feet

Chicago, June 25.—On duty seventy-two consecutive hours in connection with Eucharistic Congress activities, Policeman Albert Curran created something of a sensation when he started walking his beat barefoot.

About 4:00 o'clock Tuesday night, shortly before the shooting, Lyons said, his daughter phoned her mother, adding that she and Brewster had had a violent quarrel and that he had thrown her to the floor and beaten her head against it.

The mother suggested that she and Lyons immediately go to Glenellen and take her to their home in Manhattan, but Mrs. Brewster replied tearfully:

"No, no, I'd better take the train, but I don't know what time the train comes along."

What caused the quarrel Mrs. Brewster did not reveal to her mother, but as her parents knew that the young couple had frequent quarrels, they did not take the latter one very seriously.

BARREL OF HELP FOR BOSTON LEGION FETE

AN IMPROMPTU TABLEAU

Stars of "The Dearest Enemy" Company attend a dinner at the Hotel Bellevue to aid in booming the Cross-cup-Pishon Post boxing carnival. FAIL TO CURE SNAKE VICTIM

Waging a losing battle against an insidious poison that is creeping through her whole system, eleven-year-old Helen Kakovaichuck of No. 70 Green street, Rockland, is slowly sinking at the Massachusetts General Hospital today.

The child and her father both declare she was bitten by a strange species of snake while on her way to school. She encountered a gray snake, about three feet long and immediately felt a shock like a discharge of electricity, through her left foot.

A tiny spot developed, followed by intense pain and a general lethargic condition. Several local physicians were appealed to but prescribed in vain. The child was then taken to Brockton and treated at the Goddard hospital. In spite of every effort of physicians the poison crept through her limbs until both legs were a bright blue color.

In desperation, the father removed the girl to the Massachusetts General Hospital where she has been under the care of the best physicians in the city. All have been baffled by the peculiar poison.

It has been suggested that perhaps the snake was a cobra, escaped from some circus or zoo, but this is doubted by authorities on snake lore who say that the bite of a cobra would act far quicker than the poison that is spreading through the girl's body.

PRICE OF SNAKE BITE REDUCED TO $40,000

Lincoln, Neb., June 25 (A.P.).—Damages of $40,000 for injuries suffered from a snake bite while he was working in the Chicago & Northwestern roundhouse at Chadron, Neb., was awarded Herbert R. Brannan against the railroad company by a District court jury here. Brannan sued for $65,000.

FAST STEPPERS IN CARNIVAL CONTEST

Just when sport lovers, amusement seekers and the rest of the thousands who stand poised in readiness had believed the Crosscup-Pishon charity carnival program to be filled to overflowing, a new card was added today.

It is a Charleston contest—the biggest and speediest ever staged in New England, or anywhere else for that matter—and it is added through the courtesy of the Keith-Albee vaudeville management.

SOME FAST STEPPING.

And so, Monday night at Braves Field, beneath the glare and flicker of countless lights, New England's fairest and fastest steppers will mortal help ankles in the big fight ring for the first prize of a solid year's booking over the Keith-Albee circuit.

There will be other prizes, of course, for the runners-up, cups and things, and it is a surety that the long list of contestants the Keith-Albee people had been compiling for their own Charleston, will furnish some machine-gun tripping.

This is the new feature of the tremendous carnival, but there are many, many others that will be witnessed by the vast number of ticket-holders, including the inner circle of society, military, diplomatic and civic persons and the great mass of sport lovers who recognize a rare treat in the card for the night.

There will be forty-two rounds of boxing, topped off with the bout between Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, and Ray Neuman of New Jersey, chief contender for the title.

There will be three bands, an army of singers, including the Knickerbocker Quartet that won the Keith national prize, a battle royal, strong man contest, military pageant by army, navy and marine fighters, a tin cup battle and a host of odds and ends.

MANY DIGNITARIES.

Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols will be present with their families, as well as other dignitaries, while among the women box holders present as patronesses will be the following:

Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, honorary chairman; Mrs. Robert Shaw Weeks, Mrs. Preston Brown, Mrs. Warland Minot, Mrs. George L. Wilson, Mrs. Percy Lowell, Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Calvin T. Swan, Mrs. Benjamin Pierce, Mrs. Theodore Storer, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. Dudley P. Rannet, Mrs. A. P. Sawin, Mrs. Lars Anderson, Mrs. James Jackson, Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, Mrs. Lilian Loring, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., Mrs. Hiram McKee Bentley, Mrs. Robert Codman, Jr., Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien and Mrs. Randolph Frothingham.

SELL TICKETS AT THEATRE.

Tonight, in return for the party given them by the Crosscup-Pishon Post at the Hotel Bellevue, Helen Ford and the other principals of the Dearest Enemy company, playing at the Tremont Theatre, will scour the show to sell tickets for the carnival.

Girls of the company, in their costumes, will also circulate in the lobby selling tickets.

Show patrons will be urged to buy tickets and present them to disabled veterans if the purchasers are unable to attend the big Braves Field night themselves. This is what was done by the "Dearest Enemy" stars.

The company has invited officials of the American Legion to be their guests at the theatre tonight in connection with the ticket sale.

WIFE GIVEN DIVORCE FROM ARTIST RALEIGH

Bridgeport, Ct., June 25 (A.P.).—A divorce on the ground of cruelty, with $1,000 a month alimony and custody of three children, was given Dorothy Marian Raleigh of Westport, Ct., from Henry P. Raleigh, artist, illustrator and engraver, today.

Drives Truck for Drunken Friend; Is Fined $100

Chicopee, June 25 (A.P.).—Judge J. P. Kirby of District Court today fined Harvey Nadeau $100 for operating a truck without the permission of the owner, Albert Chamberland, who admittedly was too drunk to run it himself.

Nadeau took the stand as witness for the truck owner and said he took the wheel to aid his friend.

Thereupon the court dismissed the charge of drunken driving against Chamberland and fined Nadeau on the charge stated. Nadeau appealed.

FEAR REPRISAL BY 'CORN BELT'

Washington June 25 (I.N.S.).—Palpably nervous over the political punishment that may be meted out by the embittered corn belt in November because of the failure to adopt any measures for agricultural relief this session, Congress prepared today to go home next week and see about getting itself re-elected.

Now that the McNary-Haugen program has been defeated, it is expected that the plan to adjourn by June 30 or July 3 will be revived and shoved through, irrespective of other legislative fights. Only a few measures of major importance, such as the Radio Control bill and the Rivers and Harbors bill, remain on the urgent schedule.

Considerable bitterness was left today in the wake of the corn belt's defeat on the McNary-Haugen bill. It was sent down to decisive defeat by a combination of the conservatives of both parties in a fight that saw party lines more completely shattered than they have been on any issue in recent years. The Republican split could not have been more complete, 23 voting for it and 24 against it. The Democrats were little better off, dividing 15 and 21.

BOSTON MAYOR IS CALLED 'TYRANT'

Dean Pound Leads Attack on Nichols for Anti-Free Speech Attitude

This city today awaited with keen interest Mayor Nichols' reply to the exponents of "free speech" who bitterly attacked him at a meeting in the Old South Meeting House.

In blistering, scathing language the mayor was held up as a despot and tyrant, exercising the powers of a czar, grinding beneath the weight of his official position, all who seek to voice their honest opinions.

The Constitution was invoked against the mayor and he was invited to read "the bill of rights" of the Commonwealth.

His actions, according to one of the speakers, breeds distrust in officials.

Among the most bitter in their excoriation of the mayor were Dean Pound of the Harvard Law School, Dr. Samuel P. Crothers, for 30 years head of Christ Church, Cambridge, and James P. Munroe, wealthy lotion manufacturer.

The condemnation of Mayor Nichols was not unexpected. The indignation of those connected with the Old South Meeting House Forum has been brewing for some time and was brought to a head recently when the mayor made his position known on an attempt to conduct a meeting of protest in behalf of Anthony Bimba, whose free speech methods brought him before a court in Brockton.

Dean Pound in his remarks reiterated the statements of Mr. Munroe, and continued:

"We should have a government of laws, not of men. Every officer of this State should govern according to law and not bend, thwart and twist the law. He can't set himself up above the law. This sort of thing creates profound distrust in our officials."

Auto as Bedroom May Cost Youth $300 in Rent

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—The police found a young man asleep in a parked sedan on Third Avenue. He described himself as Albert Morgan of No. 1110 South Paulina street, Chicago. He said he and two friends had rented the car last Saturday in Chicago to drive to this city to seek work.

When his friends suggested selling the car he refused and used it as a bedroom. The police estimate that the rental of the car would be $200 at least. The youth says he deposited $15 when he took it.

ALUMNI BACK HARVARD POLICY

Entrance Restrictions Praised by Thomas W. Lamont and Other Speakers

Harvard's racial and social restrictions on candidates for admission to that college are solidly endorsed by 40,000 of her alumni.

This was the sentiment expressed at the annual commencement exercises when 1625 degrees were conferred.

The strongest supporter of the new university policy is Thomas W. Lamont of New York, member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company and a member of the class of 1892.

In a stirring address he made it plain that the alumni unanimously approve the new moves to limit college opportunities on other than intellectual lines.

"The action of the college is now being watched closely by hundreds of other institutions throughout the country, according to President John H. T. Main of Grinnell College, Iowa. Its effect, he said, will be far-reaching and may revolutionize entrance qualifications in Western colleges.

Because of the necessity of some action to limit entrants, most of the Western institutions are demoralized. They are compelled under State laws, he said, to accept every entrant, intellectually qualified

Ate So Much Game She Was Full of Shot

Berlin, June 25 (A.P.).—Ninety-five leaden pellets, weighing 24 grams, were found in the appendix of a woman operated on by Dr. Sonnefeld. The patient is a forester's daughter who has lived chiefly on game shot by her father.

The small shot which she swallowed while eating the game are said to have found lodgment in the appendix. They did not cause her the slightest discomfiture. The surgeon accidentally discovered them while performing an operation having nothing to do with the appendix.

HINDUS BOW TO SUN AT TOP OF EUROPE

Thomaso, Norway, June 25 (A.P.).—At the North Cape, which juts into the Arctic Ocean as the northernmost point of Europe, a small party of high caste Orthodox Hindus worshiped their deity through the symbol of the ever shining sun, which to the Hindu believers represents the physical glory of the spiritual sun.

The midnight ritual consisted of a recital of texts from the Vedas, or sacred books of the Hindus, and the offering of flowers and of fire sacrifices in accordance with Vedantic precepts.

HOLYOKE GETS LOWEST LIGHT PRICE IN U. S.

Municipal Plant Announces New Quantity Rate Reduction for July 1

Holyoke, June 25 (A.P.).—The new quantity rate for electric lighting current, just announced by the Municipal Gas and Electric department, is believed here to be the lowest quoted in this country.

By this rate, effective July 1, current of more than 1000 kilowatt hours a month will cost, with discount, 2½ cents per kilwatt hour.

The cut means a saving to consumers of about $30,000 a year.

Most of these users are industrial plants.

Charges are based on a sliding scale, beginning with six cents per kilowatt hour for the first 100 a month.

JAMAICA PLAN MAN WANDERS TO LYNN

Hours after he had left his home for a short walk, James Bowles of Jamaica Plain was found in Lynn wandering about in a dazed condition. He suffered an attack of convulsions and could not tell doctors how he landed in Lynn.

Graduates

PARTY FOR THREE

GRADUATION PARTY FOR 3

A graduation party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Repetto of Roxbury in honor of their three children, all of whom participated in graduation exercises during the past week, was attended by scores of their classmates.

Anthony J. Repetto, 21, was graduated from the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. Frank M. received his degree of A. B. from Boston College and Alice R. was among the honor pupils graduating from Roxbury High School. Both boys are graduates of Boston English High School. Anthony is planning to enter a scientific school and Frank will enroll in a Harvard graduate course where he will study languages.

PADLOCK INVOKED ON NEW YORK RESTAURANTS

New York, June 25.—The hand of the "padlock court" was again felt when several places upstate were penalized for liquor violations by Federal Judge A. N. Hand. They were:

The Gilt Edged Restaurant, No. 55 Broadway, Newburgh, N. Y., padlocked for one year; The Irvington Inn, Saughterton road, Kingston, N. Y., required to furnish $1,000 bail and allow search at any future time by government agents without warrants; restaurant at No. 584 Broadway, Kingston, N. Y., padlocked for a year.

100 MARINES TO BE COOLIDGE GUARD

Gabriels, N. Y., June 25.—Three carloads of material for the erection of marine barracks at President Coolidge's Summer camp are on a side track here awaiting word from Washington to begin work. Fifty temporary buildings are to be erected on a site already chosen, but which must have the sanction of the President.

One hundred marines will be quartered on the banks of Osgood Lake, where the Summer White House is to be located, and will maintain a constant guard over the entire estate.

The material on hand is for tent floors, kitchen, mess hall, recreation building and officers' quarters.

MOVE TO SAVE N. E. FROM COAL MONOPOLY

A plan to chase the coal shortage bogey out of New England and to allow producers of high-grade bituminous coal of West Virginia to market their product here on a basis fairly comparable with transportation rates from Pennsylvania, was advanced before the Interstate Commerce Commission at Atlantic City.

W. H. Day, manager of the transportation bureau of Boston Chamber of Commerce, submitted a freight rate proposal, which he believes, if followed, will enable New England to procure a stable supply of fuel in the event of mine difficulties.

The plan which Mr. Day submitted is roughly—that freight rates from West Virginia mines to New England should bear a definite relation to the rates from the Pennsylvania mines.

Speaking of New England's use of substitutes for hard coal during the Winter, Mr. Day said: "When the difference of the anthracite operators and miners arose during the coal burning season, the New England worm turned. Instead of standing by and a docile manner, 'taking the rap,' New England said, in effect, 'Settle your quarrel as you will: we will burn something else! And it did.

Mr. Day produced exhibits to show the impracticability of transporting coal from West Virginia under the present combination rates. If the rates sought are established, he claimed, a competitive source of fuel will be opened up.

PROGRAM FOR DISABLED VETS

Out in the West Roxbury Hospital for disabled veterans where many soldiers are convalescing and where lively activity is infrequent, there will be brought today a little of the joy and happiness which able-bodied mortals enjoy and desire.

The veterans will see the stars of "Dearest Enemy," musical comedy now showing at the Tremont Theatre, and at the same time hear Gus Leonard's society orchestra.

15 INDICTED IN RUM SEIZURE

In addition to a true bill returned against 15 men in connection with a Federal raid on the Oak Hill Products Company at North Leominster, the Federal grand jury returned a secret indictment.

When Federal agents raided the Oak Hill plant they seized twenty-nine drums of denatured alcohol, containing approximately 1500 gallons of finished alcohol. At the time nine men were arrested. Among those indicted were Louis Guligiaro, Martin F. Sandler and Saul Sandler of Boston.

FRENCH HEADS FIRE CHIEFS

Manchester, N. H., June 25.—Chief Charles H. French of the Manchester Fire Department is the new president of the New England Association of Fire Chiefs. The 1927 annual convention of the association will be in Portland, Me. John W. O'Hearn of Watertown, Mass., is the new secretary-treasurer.

State vice-president from Massachusetts is Seldon R. Allen of Brookline. David A. Decourcy of Winchester, Mass., is the new sergeant-at-arms, and William C. Shepard of Pittsfield, Mass., is first vice-president of the association as a whole. There were 645 members and guests present at the convention.

TO BECOME BRIDE OF SOMERVILLE MAN

CLARA B. PETERSON

New York girl in charge of music at Beaver School here, will be married tomorrow to Russell Ames Cook in Brookline tomorrow. (Photo by Horsman Studio.)

MUSIC TEACHER TO BE BRIDE

The marriage of Miss Clara Belle Peterson, daughter of Mrs. Mary Peterson of Bronxville, New York to Russell Ames Cook, will take place at St. Mark's Methodist Church, Brookline, tomorrow. The reception following will be held at Alden Park Manor, Brookline.

Miss Peterson, who is a graduate of the Wheelock School and has studied music abroad, is in charge of the music at Beaver School, Boston. Mr. Cook is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman R. Cook of West Somerville.

Mr. Cook, having long been recognised as a gifted orchestral conductor, is well known in musical circles. He is director of music at Ford Hall Forum, also at the Somerville High School, and has charge of the orchestral work at the Milton High School.

WAR VETERANS MUST BRING OWN LIQUOR

Providence, June 25.—It's going to be a dry time in the old town, up in the Centredale district, when the Veterans of Foreign Wars hold their annual State convention, beginning Saturday—unless the veterans carry their own. Chief of Police George F. Willis of North Providence declared he is going to close all of the saloons in that district.

MAIL ROMANCE AGAIN ON

Gardner, June 25.—Exercising woman's prerogative, Miss Anita Desmarais changed her mind. She may now wed Arthur Muir of West Allis, Wis., after all. The mail, which fostered her romance with the western machinist, restored her confidence, wrecked by a telegram, when she got a letter "explaining all."

Monday, the mail order husband to be, failed to show up for the wedding. A messenger boy, with a telegram, put in an appearance instead. The yellow slip said Muir was stranded in Chicago, unable to get here in time. Miss Desmarais then swore off on all mail order matrimonial clubs until she got the explanatory letter. The romance is now in good order again.

WOMAN FISHER HAD NO FISHING LICENSE

Haverhill, June 25.—Mrs. Emily Owens, of Lowell street, Peabody, pleaded guilty to a charge of fishing without a license in a Boxford pond in the District Court. Walter Babson of Newburyport, the deputy game warden, agreed to have the case placed on file and that disposition was ordered by Judge John J. Winn. Frank C. Ziskowski, who was with Mrs. Owens, also pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

$100,000 FIRE DESTROYS MILL

Passadumkeag, Me., June 25.—Firemen from four towns saved surrounding property as the sawmill and pulpwood mill of the American Realty Company, subsidiary of the International Paper Company, on Passadumkeag stream, were destroyed by fire at an estimated loss of $100,000. In addition to the two mills the boiler house, some piled lumber and a car of the Maine Central Railroad were destroyed.

Fire apparatus from Milford, Oldtown, Lincoln and Howland were sent to the scene. The mills were built about seven years ago, and employed 150 men.

GREASE CATCHES FIRE AND MAN IS BURNED

James F. Coughlin, Jr., owner and occupant of the dwelling at No. 62 Romsey street, Dorchester, was severely burned on the left forearm and right hand when grease on a gas stove in the kitchen of his home started to burn. The blazing grease ignited the woodwork in the kitchen and the fire department was called, extinguishing the flames after a loss of $75.

COMMANDERIES OF 3 STATES IN PARADES

Knights Templar Observe St. John's Day and Celebrate Centenaries

Boston commanderies headed the parade of 10,000 Knights Templar from 53 commanderies in the jurisdiction of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, in celebration of St. John's Day and the 160th anniversary of Springfield Commandery in Springfield.

Boston commanderies, after parading from the Common to South Station, went to Springfield in a special train. In the Springfield parade Charles F. White commanded the first division, which was headed by Palestine Temple band and Palestine Camidendry, Chelsea. Not far behind Palestine came Boston Temple band and Boston Commandery.

The second division was commanded by Frederick H. Briggs of Boston, and heading the division was Aleppo Temple drum corps and Shriners' Band, Boston, and De Molay Commandery, Boston. In the fifth division marched Joseph Warren Commandery of Roxbury and William Parkman Commandery, East Boston.

The parade, largest one of Knights Templar ever held in Western Massachusetts, was colorful and drew a large crowd of spectators.

Two thousand Knights Templar paraded in Portsmouth, N. H., in celebration of St. John's Day and the 160th anniversary of Knights Templar in New Hampshire.

VETS ENDORSE PREPAREDNESS

Atlanta, Ga., June 25 (Universal)—National preparedness and a well-trained and efficiently organized army were recommended in a resolution of the sixth annual convention of Disabled American Veterans of the World War here.

Other resolutions adopted included the indorsement of the Kenesaw Mountain Memorial project, a protest against a recent order of the United States Veterans' Bureau reducing salaries of employes; a recommendation that all overseries men's records be revised with a view to applying the new rating schedule; an attack on methods of cutting the budget which affects service to and relief of ex-service men, and recommending that fireproof protection be provided for the safeguarding of records of disabled veterans.

SACCO MEETING TAME AFFAIR

Brockton, June 25.—Only $22 was collected among less than 100 persons attending the widely advertised Sacco-Vanzetti meeting in Eagle Hall. Several prominent speakers who were scheduled to be present did not show up.

Apathy apparently marked the meeting, and there wasn't even the least sign of a disturbance. Policemen were scattered throughout the hall. The only scheduled speaker to appear was Professor Felice Quadgni of the National Sacco-Vanzetti Council. Others who spoke were Sydney Bloomfield of Worcester and Harry Gantor of Boston, both members of the National Labor Defense.

Mexican Senorita Is Married to Wrong Man

Mexico City, June 24. — Rafael Torres, of Torreon, has a wife he doesn't want and the former Sendrita Concepcion Pulido De Mendoza has a husband she never saw until the wedding ceremony. Zealous friends kidnaped the bridegroom, forcing him to marry. In the dim light she did not learn that her partisans had captured the wrong man.

LOSER IN PRIMARY MAY SEEK RECOUNT

Portland, Me., June 25.—Gilbert A. Powers, defeated on the face of the primary returns for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Cumberland County by Sheriff King P. Graham, announced that in view of the narrow margin of 272 votes between the two, he would ask for an inspection of the ballots. If this reveals anything to warrant such action, he will petition the Governor and Council for an official recount.

4 IMPRISONED AS ELEVATOR STALLS

Firemen Cut Through Shaft to Rescue Woman and Three Men in Car

Firemen of Ladder No. 1 were called to rescue a woman and three men from a stalled elevator at No. 112 Canal street.

The elevator stalled between the first and second floors. The firemen cut a hole six feet square in the elevator well and took the three passengers and the operator out by means of a ladder.

Screams of Mrs. Joseph Sullivan of No. 65 Church street, Somerville, when the elevator stalled, attracted the attention of Traffic Officer Andrew Spencer, who investigated and then called the ladder company.

Mrs. Sullivan, the first taken out, was much frightened, but took a taxicab to her home, declining to go to a hospital. The men went away before the police got their names. The operator was Benjamin Hogsett of No. 19 Washington avenue, Charlestown.

FATHER CAREY WILL CELEBRATE FIRST MASS

The first solemn high mass of the Rev. William A. Carey, S. J., recently ordained to the priesthood at Woodstock College, Maryland, will be celebrated Sunday at St. Mary's Church, North End.

Father Carey was born in the North End, received his elementary training at St. Mary's School, attended Boston College High School and entered the Society of Jesus in July, 1912. At the end of mass, Father Carey will give his blessing to the entire congregation. A reception will be tendered the young priest at the home of his parents in the afternoon and evening.

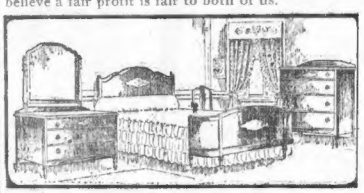
Cambridge Over the Bridge to MOLLER'S Lowell
A Little Trip That Leads to Big Savings

Something More Than Advertising

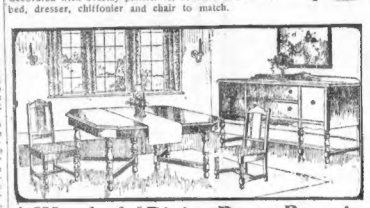
Certainly our advertising brings people into this store. But we must have something more than advertising. Our duty to the public in this great store is to have the kind of merchandise that people ought to buy, and sell it at prices they ought to pay. We believe a fair profit is fair to both of us.

That's why we sell furniture at prices that are guaranteed to be the lowest in New England and we make no additional charge when you buy on our unusually liberal credit terms. In addition, we try to serve our customers in a spirit of real service. For this reason, folks find that it pays to come to Moller's and Cambridge.



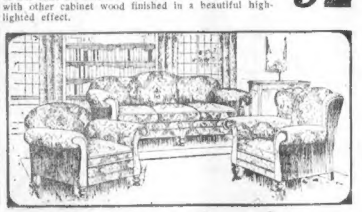
4-Piece Bedroom Suite $72

Another instance of the excellent values in this big store at all times. Here you have a complete bedroom outfit of good construction throughout—of fine quality cabinet woods beautifully finished to resemble walnut, decorated with overlay panels. It consists of bow-foot bed, dresser, chiffonier and chair to match.



A Wonderful Dining Room Bargain $92

This suite consists of six pieces including a 60-inch buffet, oblong extension table, four side chairs with slip seats upholstered in a fine tapestry. The woods used in this suite are selected walnut veneers in combination with other cabinet wood finished in a beautiful high-lighted effect.



3-Piece Living Room Suite $98

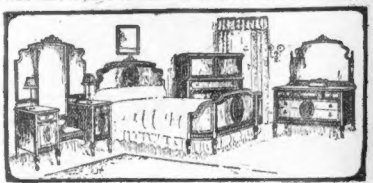
The beautiful lines, fine upholstery and heavy frame of this luxurious suite are characteristic of furniture that sells for much higher prices. The fronts are upholstered in a beautiful jacquard velour while the sides and backs are covered in plain velour. It has full spring construction with loose, spring-cushioned seats. The suite consists of sofa, arm chair and club chair.

White Mountain "The Chest With a Chill in It" $27.50

43 inches high, 32 inches wide, 17½ inches deep, ice capacity approximately 65 pounds. White enamel lining.

Reed Rocker $9.95

Large, comfortable rocker, with broad arms, automobile seat and back rest covered in a very good grade of cretonne.

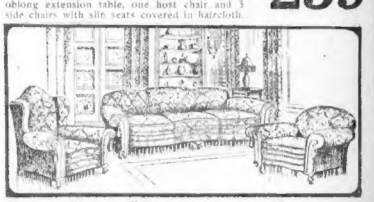


Handsome Bedroom Suite $249

You cannot imagine a suite of this kind selling at such a low figure. It consists of large dresser with an unusually large plate mirror, full size bow-foot bed, the latest low-boy chest and large vanity case. A very high-grade suite of Huguenot walnut veneer in combination with other cabinet wood with beautiful stippled panels. A rare value.

10-Piece Dining Room Suite $239

This is an exceptionally fine suite, built of selected Huguenot walnut veneers in combination with other cabinet woods. Included are an extra large size buffet, china cabinet, server, oblong extension table, one host chair and 5 side chairs with slip seats covered in haircloth.



3-Piece Living Room Suite $289

With its deep seats and full spring construction, this living room group represents real luxury and comfort. The loose spring filled cushion seats are reversible, covered on both sides to match the suite. The suite is covered all over in a fine grade of jacquard velour; has serpentine fronts, web bottoms, and is decorated with tassels.

Couch Hammock $15.95

A super value. Strong steel frame, covered with good grade of khaki cloth. It has adjustable headrest and back, finely upholstered. Completely equipped with chains. Stand extra.

LORDS REJECT ASTOR'S PLEA

London, June 25 (Universal)—Lord Astor failed, 50 to 158, in his third attempt to induce the House of Lords to admit women members. Twenty-five British peeresses in their own right, headed by Lady Rhondda, have been agitating for seats in the gilded chamber.

Lord Birkenhead again administered the death blow to the measure.

"If the reform of the House of Lords is recommended, and the country as a whole affords the women a place, we will agree," he said. "But we are opposed to granting special privileges to a very special caste of 25 women."

WAGE HEARINGS OF CARMEN POSTPONED

Because of an engagement of James H. Vahey in court, the arbitration proceedings in the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway wage controversy, which were scheduled to start today, have been postponed until a date to be determined later.

FRIEDA HEMPEL WINS DIVORCE

Paris, June 26 (A.P.)—Frieda Hempel, the opera singer, within thirty days will receive a decree of divorce from her husband, William D. Kahn, a patent broker of New York. Mme. Hempel and Mr. Kahn were summoned by the Judge two days ago and the usual efforts for reconciliation, in accordance with French law, were to have been attempted.

The wife was present in court, but Mr. Kahn failed to appear. Although it is understood he is in Paris, he has taken no part in any of the proceedings. Mme. Hempel charges her husband with abandonment and refusal to support her. The singer has a permanent residence in Paris and will remain here or at some French resort during the Summer, or until the beginning of the opera season.

S. Henshaw Motor Company, Boston.

PROTESTS GIVING UP OF SIX-CENT LINE

City Councilman John F. Dowd of Ward 8, Roxbury, in a letter to 55-ward Dana, general manager of the Boston Elevated, protested against the proposed abandonment of the 6-cent fare line between Eustis street, Roxbury, and Essex street, city proper.

senger travel on railroads, except for short distances. All other travel will be in the air, and cumbersome, wasteful carriages mounted on wheels will have disappeared.

RELIGIOUS DEVOTION is dangerous, carried to excess. That is proved by the horrors of the Middle Ages, when Christians burned and tortured each other because of religious differences.

In the "Holy" Mohammedan city of Mecca, Egyptian soldiers escorted the "holy carpet," the hand playing a tune. Wahabis, strict Mohammedans, attacked the band, because Mohammed objected to music. Twenty-five Lahabis were shot dead, and the party was spoiled.

THE HOLY CARPET covers the holy black stone in the Kaaba, the stone on which Mohammed stood when he rode to Heaven on his white mare and saw angels so big that their eyes were several days' journey apart.

Mohammedans tell you that the black stone in the Kaaba is a ruby brought down from Heaven, and the Kaaba was built by Abraham. Tell a good Mohammedan that no white mare could possibly have carried Mohammed through the seven heavens, and he will answer: "Oh, that was an unusual mare, belonging to the Angel Gabriel, who lent her to Mohammed. And by the way, why do you Christian's doubt Mohammed's trip on a white mare and ask us to believe that your Saint Elijah went to Heaven in a chariot of fire, before flying machines were invented?"

It is hard to argue with a Mohammedan. He is so bigoted.

GYM TOURNEY DRAWS SEVEN CHAMPIONS

Philadelphia, June 25 (A.P.)—Seven champions were here today to defend their titles in the National A. A. U.'s men's gymnastic tournament which has drawn one of the largest entry lists on record. The tournament will be held tonight in the municipal stadium on the sesqui-centennial grounds.

The titleholders who will defend their laurels are: Charles Crener, New York A. C., in the side horse; Ray W. Dutcher, New York A. C., Indian clubs; Walter R. Meyer, New York Turn Verein, parallel bars; Manfred Kraemer, Newark A. C., rope climb; David Sharpe, Los Angeles A. C., flying rings, and Alfred Jochim, Swiss Turn Verein, in the all-around event.

NEW SUMMER TRIPS FOR NORTH AND SOUTH SHORE

A new idea in Summer trips will be offered by the Nantasket Steamboat Company, beginning tomorrow, and continuing Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays during the excursion season. These delightful sails will make it possible for persons from all sections of the State to enjoy a triangular cruise, combining all the beauties of the North and South Shores.

The morning and afternoon sails are so arranged so that those who wish to spend most of the day at Nantasket can return via Salem Willows, where excursionists can visit places of historic interest, including the home of Nathaniel Hawthorne, the House of the Seven Gables and Witches Hill.

A line of steamboats will be run to Salem Willows, leaving Boston at 9:30 a. m. and arriving at Salem at 11 a. m. Boats will leave Salem Willows at 11:30 a. m., arriving at Nantasket at 1 p. m. Returning, the boats will leave Nantasket at 4 p. m., Salem Willows at 6 p. m., Boston at 8:15 p. m.

RUSSIAN BARONESS WEDS U. S. DOCTOR

Cleveland, June 25 (A.P.).—The secret marriage of Baroness Ally Schwartzenberg, Russian noblewoman, and Dr. Edward Gauly, Cleveland, was announced today. Dr. Gauly is an associate of Dr. Hamilton F. Biggar, formerly John D. Rockefeller's personal physician.

Baroness Schwartzenberg has been in Cleveland for several months, coming here to dispose of a painting which some art experts declare is an original of Leonard Da Vinci. It is the baroness' third marriage.

SLAYER DIES IN CHAIR WITH PRAYER ON LIPS

Cestining, N. Y., June 25 (U.N.S.)—Muttering a prayer for his soul about to pass into eternity, Frank Daly, gangster, paid the penalty in the electric chair at Sing Sing today for the murder of Inspector Jacob Bunker and Motorman Raslan I. Nicoll, street railroad employes, in a trolley holdup near Mount Vernon, N. Y., last July. Before he went to his death Daly received a farewell visit from his sweetheart, Mary Mooney.

It's the killingest stuff you ever used!

YOUR HOUSE can be swarming with flies and mosquitoes and roaches and BLACK FLAG will kill every doggone one of 'em! Not a single one escapes this deadliest of insect-killers.

It's the secret ingredient does it! A vegetable ingredient which is the surest death to insects ever discovered. Bugs breathe it and die. They strangle to death—all of them! Yet this ingredient in BLACK FLAG which is so deadly to bugs is absolutely harmless to humans and animals.

Give this surer, quicker, better insect-killer a trial. It rids a house of fleas! Roaches, ants and bed-bugs, too! Kills every bug and every kind of bug that ventures into the home. BLACK FLAG comes in two forms—liquid and powder — equally deadly. At drug, grocery, hardware and department stores. Powder is 15c up. Powder Gun, 10c. HAYFEVER RELIEF breaks up severe attacks in few seconds

To Physicians and Hay Fever Sufferers

Doctors and scientists inquiring into the causes of hay fever agree that the irritation in eyes, nose and throat is caused by protein. While this protein is found in foods and other substances, its existence in the powdery pollen of certain grasses and flowers is the most common cause of hay fever.

Ercolin Gives Instant Relief

ERCOLIN—a new physiological compound has been developed which goes straight to the cause of Hay Fever trouble—welcome news to the thousands who now suffer. ERCOLIN reacts on the protein found in all pollens. It neutralizes instantly their irritating effect on the mucous membrane. A single application of ERCOLIN cleans out nose and eyes, stops burning and itching immediately.

Breaks Up Attacks

There is no guesswork—no doubtful waiting for results. Irritated tissues are soothed instantly. Immediate relief is experienced and Hay Fever symptoms ordinarily vanish within a few seconds. In extreme cases a second application may be necessary.

A Preventive

ERCOLIN is an effective Hay Fever preventive. One application each morning and evening protects against recurrence of attacks.

Use ERCOLIN freely; it is odorless, tasteless — harmless in every way.

Easy to Use

Apply with eye cup, atomizer, nasal douche or any method which will permit ERCOLIN to reach the irritated membranes of eyes, nose or throat.

A Successful Treatment

Not until its therapeutic efficiency was thoroughly established was ERCOLIN put on the market. Hundreds of cases of Hay Fever, Rose Cold, June Colds and kindred ailments have been treated successfully. ERCOLIN positively gives relief. It is a scientific treatment—the first local treatment to which this baffling disease has definitely yielded. Use ERCOLIN and enjoy your first Summer free from Hay Fever. At drug stores everywhere. Smith-Ernster Laboratories, Cambridge, Mass. George Wm. Bentley Co., New England Distributors.

Druggists—Order Ercolin from Brewer & Co., Eastern Drug Co., Gilman Bros. Co., and S. S. Pierce Co.

"There, there! Don't cry, little thing," whispered Tony Every word breathed his love.

READ THIS FIRST

MERRY LOCKE, just twenty, falls in love with a MAN IN GRAY, whom she sees every day on Boylston street. To fall in love is nothing new to Merry. She has been doing it ever since she was sixteen. But this time she feels that she has found the One and Only person for her.

She's sorry now that she let DERRICK JONES, a college boy and neighbor in Arlington, and others make love to her. MOMS had always told her and her three sisters not to kiss a man until they became engaged.

Merry has HELEN, oldest sister, still unmarried, and CASSIE, whose beau, MORLEY KAUFMAN, breaks engagements with her whenever he feels like it.

One night Merry and JINNY, the youngest sister, go to the circus with Derrick Jones. They find themselves sitting next to the Man in Gray. He takes Merry home, and Merry lets him kiss her goodnight. The next day when they meet he tells Merry how much he cares for her, and that love at first sight is the only kind worth having, and then asks her to marry him. In a burst of confidence, Merry tells him that she's been in love before, and that it never lasted long. Disgusted, he takes her home, but later he comes to see her and asks her to marry him if she still cares about him in six months. Merry says she will, but decides not to tell her family anything about him until they've had a chance to meet him.

The night when he is coming to call on her at home happens to be DAD'S and MOMS' wedding anniversary. Moms scolds him for spending too much money on gifts.

Tony, sent away by his law firm, is unable to call on Merry. Then comes a fateful phone call. Helen answers the call.

CHAPTER X.

THE day was hot and sultry, but Helen's teeth were chattering as if she were chilled to the marrow.

"Dad—he's had a stroke down at the store," she managed to blurt out at last. "They're bringing him home."

Merry knew the grim secret—knew couldn't believe it.

"Oh, I guess it's just a bad stroke," she said easily, as she followed Helen upstairs to the front bedroom that belonged to Dad and Moms. "Who told you about him?"

"Bill Hepworth," Helen answered, taking clean sheets and pillow cases from the linen closet. "He was in the store when it happened. He's the one who telephoned."

He made an investigation of reports that a volcano was in eruption. He said the dust cloud arising from tons of rock sliding from the mountain peak had been mistaken for smoke.

On the mountains the farthest from the glacier masses of rock of from 500 to 2,000 tons intermittently crash down to a valley with a deafening roar. The glacier has blocked and are extraordinarily different, oh

U. S. WILL BUILD GREAT AIR FLEET

Quebec Liquor System Originated By 'Drys

HAPGOOD FINDS IT SATISFIES

Plan Worked Out to Keep Greatest Number in Contentment

Norman Hapgood, noted writer and editor, is now in Canada for the purpose of making a thorough survey of the workings of the liquor laws being tried out in five of the nine provinces there. In order to get a comprehensive knowledge of the situation he has associated with clergymen, government officials, newspaper men, business heads, and even mixed with inebriates. The result of his investigations are told in a series of articles written for the Hearst newspapers, the fifth of which is printed here today

ARTICLE V.

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,
Universal Service Correspondent
Copyright 1926 by Universal Service.

Quebec, June 25.—It can scarcely be too much emphasized that the people in control of the Quebec liquor system, and the people who originated it, and persuaded some reluctant elements to give it a trial, are not wets. They are drys.

They imagine they will never touch a drop. They include many who did in the preceding fight for prohibition, but whose minds were open to the future of the experiment.

Another thing that I mentioned in connection with Montreal, must be repeated here. General Andrews who is my model in doing a great work said on the stand that if we permit ourselves to beer to be sold in America it would make the selling of whiskey not half but four times. He may have been right in what he meant, for he was thinking of merely permitting the sale without putting the State government into the business at all.

DUE TO WHOLE.

It is not my business to say whether he was right or wrong. I am reporting not prophesying or legislating. But it is my business as a reporter to make it perfectly clear that the whole success of putting control of liquor in the hands of the government is due to the system as a whole and not to a fragment of it.

The sale of beer in taverns, the sale of wine in restaurants, the sale of strong drink in small quantities at high prices, under difficulties, the furnishing of the wine and the spirits by a government agency, are all part of the idea, and in the opinion of most of the residents as part of the success. The object is to sustain as many people as possible while injuring as few as possible.

That psychology, and that effort, are extraordinarily different, oh

18,776 Drawn From U. S. to Canada In One Year

Ottawa, Ont., June 25 (A.P.).—Emigrants numbering 18,776 went from the United States to settle in Canada during the year ending April 1 1926. This was an increase of 3,500 over the previous year, says a bulletin issued by the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization.

In addition 42,241 Canadians returned to the Dominion. Michigan led the States of the Union in sending citizens to Canada with a total of 2,289. Washington was next with 2,062, New York third with 1,815 and Minnesota fourth with 1,060.

Obviously, from an attempt to set out to prevent aliens to any society by a method that is objectionable to forty per cent of the people, or even twenty per cent of the people in a given locality, Quebec boldly accepted the doctrine that if you want to help people you must choose a way in which they are willing to be helped.

CANNOT BE FORCED.

Some of those holding key positions in enforcement have told me they would vote for absolute prohibition if they believed it possible, as they see little but evil in the whole habit. But they realize that some people died under things cannot be forced.

Moreover, apart from the question of the amount drunk and the amount of intoxication the leaders of the present movement put a good deal of stress on the habits of having their children brought up in a community where practically everybody is cooperating to carry out a law as comparatively easy to keep inevitable as that it is a good deal about the effect on the young of having a law that must be always attracting attention, constantly viewed instead of constantly flouted.

Perhaps that matter of the children and the atmosphere in which they grow up was in the minds of the women of Winnipeg in 1916 when 70 per cent of them voted for repeal prohibition and go over to a modification of the system that has proved here.

The whole movement means an effort to rely on force, on policing, trust on no police pressure, general satisfaction, and finally education.

FOIL PLOT TO OUST RIVERA

Many Arrests Made in Spanish Conspiracy Backed by Liberal Element

Paris, June 25 (A.P.).—A plot to overthrow the Primo De Rivera government in Spain, backed by advanced Republican and Liberal elements, has been discovered and many persons connected with it, including numerous intellectuals, are under arrest, says a dispatch to the Journal from Madrid.

Prominent among those who signed a manifesto to the people calling for the undoing of General Primo De Rivera, the Premier, is the Duke of Rota, known years ago as Captain General Weyler, the governor general of Cuba. Weyler is now at Palma, on the Island of Majorca and is said to be under close surveillance.

Former Minister of War General Aguilera is declared to have been arrested in the plot. Widely known figures among the Liberals and Republicans who have been put under arrest are Melquiades Alvarez, former minister of state; Miguel de Unamuno and Perez Galdos and the editor of La Libertad of Madrid are among the others who are under arrest.

Two journals not considered as the government organs, that of the Socialists and that of the Republicans, have been suppressed by the government.

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria are now in Paris, and it is believed that the plot was hatched there.

HARVARD CREWS BEAT YALE FRESHMEN AND JAYVEE

Crimson Blades Flash to Easy Victories in Thames Races

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New London, Ct., June 25.—Harvard assured itself of at least the majority of victories in the annual New London regatta today by winning both the freshmen and junior varsity races from Yale this morning by convincing margins. The Crimson yearlings won by four lengths and the "Jayvees" by two.

S[illegible] at the seventh hour for a first string boat, six of which [illegible] of the honor code in examinations, Yale outfooted and outrowed Harvard from start to finish. [illegible] rowed better than they knew for the first mile. At this point the Crimson were right up with Harvard, reputed to be the best freshman crew ever gathered in one boat, but of course condition, ability and experience scored over fighting hearts at the end.

[illegible] the two-mile distance was 11 minutes [illegible] flat, dead water being the answer [illegible] unfinished watermanship became [illegible] regard in the extreme and complete [illegible] overbalanced whatever was left [illegible] of its fighting heart.

LIONS BATSMEN HIT BALL AT .291 CLIP

New York, June 25.—Compiling a team batting average of .291, this year's Columbia baseball squad was the hardest hitting combination to represent the Blue and White since the 1916 outfit generally was recognized as the intercollegiate champion. Coach Andy Coakley's squad rapped out 271 safe drives in the 240 times the players made to the plate in the twenty-two games played.

The team was never held to less than six hits and only twice were any pitchers so successful against the Lions. Bob Brooks, of N. Y. U. managed to limit the Blue and White to a half dozen blows, but these were timely, with the result that Columbia vanquished the Bronx outfit, 3 to 0. Lawson Van Riper, of Dartmouth, who had been unbeaten until he bowed before Harvard last week, also had the honor of having only six hits made off his delivery.

Columbia was most successful at bat against Syracuse, which was touched for a total of thirty hits in the two games with the up State nine the first day.

At Baker Field, Allen, the "submarine forge, was knocked all over the lot by batters hits and a 14 to 2 victory, his first return game at Syracuse, the Lions again had no trouble with the opposing boxmen this time the left handed Van Lenzen, generally regarded as a first rate pitcher, being the victim. The southpaw's wards were returned to the fielders for a total of fourteen hits, of which half went for extra bases. Three home runs, a pair of doubles and an equal number of triples made up the slugging.

In ten of the games on the Lion's card, Coach Coakley's men drilled out ten or more hits, and in five other contests they accounted for nine safe wallops. In view of this consistent work with the stick, it is little wonder that the Columbia team was the best in a decade.

Four members of the Columbia team completed the season with batting averages of over .300. These were Captain Ferdinand Zerrell, with a mark of .444; Frank Trentacosti, with .346; Art Smith, with .323, and Captain-elect Jack Furey, with .308. None of the players were real weak batters, Ralph Furey, the pitcher, having a mark of .220. All except three of the ten regulars hit over .250, and one of the trio was close to that mark.

Herman Easy Victor Over Tod Morgan

By JACK CONWAY

ONE pound of flesh deprived Babe Herman of winning the world's junior lightweight championship when he de[illegible] Morgan in a ten-round bout at the Cycle A. C. of Bos[illegible]

Frank Churchill, Morgan's manager, compelled Herman to weigh at 121 pounds, one pound above the world's junior lightweight notch, in order to get the match. The champion was at the same weight.

It was Churchill's ability as a manager rather than Morgan's fighting which saved the title. Herman carried seven rounds, one was even, while Morgan blasted big way out front in two chapters.

Herman came near winning by a knockout in the third frame. He dropped Morgan to the canvas with a right to the jaw. The champion got up without taking any of the benefit of the count. He pulled a Ray Bronson and smiled and then began to talk to Herman as he clung on for all he was worth.

Up to this point it had been a tame battle. There wasn't much action in the first round. Herman's aggressiveness gave him a shade in the second frame. Herman was out front. Then came the third round with its gripping thrills.

HERMAN continued his heavy bombardment in the fourth and fifth frames. Morgan rallied in the sixth and held Babe even.

The champion came fast in the seventh and eighth rounds and out boxed and outfought his rival. It looked as though Morgan was going to batter his way to victory after all.

Herman apparently realized his mistake as he spurted in the ninth round. A terrific right to the chin staggered Morgan and sowed him down. Herman earned the round. He was also out front in the tenth chapter.

JOHNNY HILL, Frank Churchill's latest Filipino boxer, showed plenty of walloping power when he stopped Martin Kid Silvers of Antonio, Ct., in two rounds. A right to the chin put Silvers down. He got up after the count of ten, and was waved to his corner by Referee Harry Brown.

Tom Lang of England stopped Eddie Traynor of Roxbury in two chapters. Homer Robinson of Pittsburgh won over Jack Schorr of Portland in eight frames, while Larry Brigolla of Cambridge outpointed Red Meriden of Brockton in six rounds.

JOE O'CONNOR refereed the feature bout, while Jim Harmon, Danny White kept time.

Jim Jeffries and Tom Sharkey will repeat the fistic bout and get a kick out of the show.

The next show of the Cycle A. C. will be held on July 9 with Jimmy Bass of Philadelphia and Johnny Sheppard of Woburn in the main go, while another ten will bring together Terry Parker of the North End and Steve Smith of Hudson, Joe Monte of Brockton and Harry LaMar of Washington, fours as amateurs, will also box ten frames.

FLOWERS HERE FOR GO WITH NEUMAN

The Crosscup-Pishon Post, American Legion, which will stage its second annual boxing carnival for the welfare fund, Monday night at Braves Field, will keep its office open until nine o'clock tonight and tomorrow night at No. 209 Washington street.

There the precious tickets can be obtained for the Tiger Flowers-Ray Neuman, Red Chapman-Al Corbett, Sammy Fuller-Carl Tremaine, Jimmy Amato-Whitey Jack Erdahl and Tuffy Parker-Tony Carney bouts. There are five of them on the card, and a great boxing and wrestling program for the fans of New England. Flowers will train at Jim Toland's gym today.

However, the Crosscup-Pishon Post does not think any card, even Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, too big for the fans of New England and also the society folks who like boxing and that was why there was no limit given Matchmaker Alex McLean in making the matches.

There are two bouts on the card of five which the fans must not overlook despite the fact there is no world champion in them. Jimmy Amato White, one of the foremost lightweights in the game, who beat Al Mello and Jack Erdahl of England in a [illegible] match.

1,500 Spades Are Held in Pinochle Hand

Cleveland, June 25—Two unusual pinochle hands were announced here today. Upon learning that Mrs. J. I. Bishop held 1,000 aces—eight aces—Harry B. Hertel, deputy clerk at the election board, declared that he held 1,500 spades.

Hertel claims that he held a double run of ace, king, queen, jack and ten of spades in addition to the ace of hearts and jack of diamonds. The jack formed a pinochle with the queen of spades, giving forty more. I was 1,540 points."

"My partner held two twenty-aced nine of trumps, making 50 points," Hertel said. "We took every trick, giving 240 more points. The total was 1,540 points."

NEW YORK A. C. VERY STRONG IN RELAYS

New York, June 25.—Opposing the relay teams that the New York A. C. is going to send to the National Championships in July looks like a tough proposition for the other clubs which will try to cop some of the A. A. U. relay crowns this year. The Wingfoot Club has a virtual monopoly on the best combinations in the country and there is a very good chance that the New Yorkers will be able to make a clean sweep of all the relay titles. They have done it once already—once in 1921 at Pasadena and again last year at San Francisco—and the men they have ready for this year's nationals look capable of repeating the stunt.

Of the six sprinters who won the quarter-mile and half-mile relays, three are in shape to run now. They are Frank Hussey, the Boston College star, Jackson Scholz, who is a veteran wearer of the Winged Foot, and John Todd. These three men won the 440 relay championship together with Macdonald, the U. of Pennsylvania sprinter. Scholz and MacDonald teamed up with Wooding and Thompson to take the half-mile relay crown. Wooding seems to be lost to this year's sprint teams, having retired to all appearances. His loss is a severe one for the former Syracuse star was rated as one of the best sprinters in the country. Whether or not MacDonald will compete is also problematical.

COLLEGE STARS SIGNED.

Reinforcements have been enlisted by the New Yorkers in the sprints, however, several of the best college dash men having been and Swinburne, the other Georgetown man, at the Winged Foot Club. Stanley Lenck, another Columbia win the sprint medley title among the colleges, is also to all appearances. His loss is a severe one for the former Syracuse star was rated as one of the best sprinters in the country. Whether or not MacDonald will compete is also problematical.

Reinforcements have been enlisted by the New Yorkers in the sprints, however, several of the best college dash men having been and Swinburne, the other Georgetown man, at the Winged Foot Club. Stanley Lenck, another Columbia win the sprint medley title among the colleges, is also help out the relay teams, but he will be an important factor in the race for the national quarter-mile championship. Last year's winning mile relay team was composed of Joe Campbell of Columbia, Jimmy Holden of Georgetown, Allan Hollfrich of Penn State and Joe Tierney the former Holy Cross star. Holden and Campbell are back again and Bellis and Burgess will probably team up with them.

RAMBLERS WIN FROM INDEPENDENTS, 8 TO 7

McBride's single in the second "extra" inning of a tie game gave the Ramblers their second victory of the week-end when they defeated the Independents, 8 to 7. The winners went into the last inning with the score 5 to 3 in their favor but allowed the Independents to tie the count. The eighth passed with neither team scoring, and the game was won in the ninth when Roger, first up batted, and scored on a pitcher's error, Smith walked, Conlon doubled to left scoring Smith, and McBride singled to center, scoring Conlon.

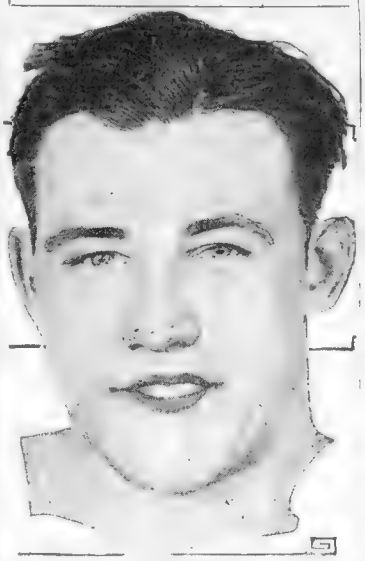
Didn't I hand Sharkey a beating when we met at the Arena last [illegible] quarrel Bud. You know [illegible] I always beat a man [illegible] decisively in a second [illegible]

Sharkey rules a slight favorite [illegible] despite the fact [illegible] defeated him last fall. It is pointed out that since the Gorman-Sharkey [illegible] suffered a [illegible] defeat.

CHOICE OF EXPERTS



JACK SHARKEY

New England heavyweight champion rules slight favorite in his battle with Bud Gorman at Braves Field tonight.

As Rivals View Bout

Bud Gorman—I shall beat Jack Sharkey even more decisively than I did when we first fought in Boston last Fall. I realize the import [illegible] of our battle at Lynn tonight. I want to prove I am outstanding [illegible] challenger for a battle with Harry Wills.

Jack Sharkey—I am ready for my [illegible] bout with Bud Gorman and shall win. I shall [illegible] more punches at Gorman than the Wisconsin [illegible] ever saw where in a single bout.

ITH has today received the large sum of ten dollars from a newspaper for the lighthouse ghost story.

I find she has used the story of the so-called ghost at Twin ows as a basis to work from, and that she uses my name as owner of the property. Quite aside from a distaste for see- my name in print, I feel that the mere fact of its publication give it a substantiality it has hitherto lacked.

Rockingham Motor Speedway, Salem, N. H., June 25.—Danny O'Brien, Peabody favorite, and Frank Elliott, in their brand new Miller racers, burnt up a hundred or two scorching miles before a gathering of 2,500 visitors here in the Lakeside up process of preparation for the big Independence Day classic to be held here July 5.

Fred Wagner, A. A. A. referee, is active, who will hold the track flags during the event, has been making the speedboys put on the time trials equalled the record made earlier in the week by Ira Vail, one of the California youth who turned around at 135 3-3 mile per hour, breaking all previous Rockingham and other American track attainments with the new small bore engines. Practically every car entered in the race is new and Riders seem to be the favorite.

Racers and their mechanics are daily studying the possibilities at Rockingham and it is predicted by Jack Lecain that the big sensation in auto racing annals is to be pulled here July 5. The possibilities of the small bore engine will be displayed most of the 5 1-2 inches at opposed track, improved rather than altered the frosts of Winter and consequently better weather and horses as regards temperature than last October, La Cain and his track associates point to as ideal for setting new speed marks.

There are ten cars more due to arrive here today and then all the entries will have checked in. Today and Saturday will be hot tuning up days as will every day next week. Fred Wagner is busy of all preparations on the track. The fifty-mile dash promises to be the most thrilling great as the long grind of 2 0 miles which will follow.

Some new faces at Rockingham those of "Cap" Duff, the London lad in his shining Miller, and two other English contenders, E. A. D. Eldridge and W. Douglas Hawkes, have created a situation of much doubt as to who will cop the first honors in the big classic Duff knocked off third place in the Altoona affair and Eldridge in his "Silver Jack" Al made a fine showing in the Indianapolis and Altoona events.

Oakland is still a strong favorite among the early fans despite recent setbacks, a hard field and other conditions. He holds the record of 106 kilometers made with his 1 2-cubic inch motor which last fall established a new record of 138 miles per hour.

OMAHA YOUTHS SURVIVE IN WEST GOLF TOURNEY

St. Louis, June 25 (A.P.).—The twenty-sixth annual trans Missis sippi golf tournament at Algonquin Country Club reached semi-finals today, when two strapping Omaha youths matched strokes in the semi-finals of a field of crack middle western veterans.

Having eliminated the present champion, Clarence Wolff and a former title-holder, James Manion both of St. Louis, Jack Pollard, seventeen year-old Omaha high school boy leaped off the morning with the veteran Eddie Held. A comedian, St. Louis long a favorite in this part of the country. Facing an opponent equally as skilful with his mashie as the redoubtable Held, John Goetman, eighteen year-old Omaha City champion, carried a fight for championship honors through the semi final round with a dark horse player.

POLO TITLE MATCHES TO OPEN IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, June 25 (A.P.).—Buffalo, Detroit, Rochester and Toronto will send polo teams here, July 10 to compete against Chagrin Valley and Cleveland in polo games to the cavalry goal national championship.

Wagner here will play one of the latter and the games promise to be the most interesting ever staged in Chicago, July 24 for the right to entry in national polo at Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island, in August.

NEWSBOY BROWN IS FAVORITE OVER SILVA

Hollywood Cal., June 25 (A.P.)—Newsboy Brown of New York and Tebbs Silva, Oakland contenders for the flyweight crown, are in top form for their ten round bout here tonight. Brown became of a draw with Pedi La Barba flyweight champion was a favorite with fans today. Each will enter the ring at 114 pounds.

San Antonio—Joe Lohman, Toledo light weight, won a fantastic star Chuck Burns of San Antonio (10). Charles Lopez Toledo O., was awarded a decision over Georgie Bates of Hot Springs, Ark. (10).

DUNDEE CHIEF CONTENDER FOR WELTER TITLE

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Joe Dundee, hard hitting welterweight from Baltimore has become the leading challenger for the title now held by Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., by scoring a technical knockout over Mickey Walker of Elizabeth N. J., in eight rounds.

Many predicted a victory yet few foresaw that the Baltimorean would make it so decisive in a bout scheduled for 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden last night. In 1919 Pete Latzo knocked out Mickey Walker in one round but until last night neither ever had forced his rival before the end of the scheduled number of rounds.

Last night Mickey was not the boxer he had been and he entered the ring a to a badly damaged eye which served as a target for Dundee's stiffly driven. After the first round Dundee had all the better of it and blood flowed from the wound as freely that in the eighth the referee stepped between the men and declared the Baltimore lad the winner although Walker seemed strong. Boxing writers agreed that he received a setback in proper.

Sailors and Huskies Favored

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 25 (I.N.S.).—With only three days before the regatta classic, coaches eased up today in drying their crews into tiptop form.

Washington and the Navy are equal favorites to win the big race on Monday.

These confined themselves to four mile workouts. California, West Point and Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania special rigs on racing shells and a short miler pull Dad Vail's Wisconsin Badgers took a long slow 'CRW' row workout.

The Columbia varsity and freshmen crews took their last time trial before the race. No official time was given out but several watches caught the varsity in a fraction better than twenty minutes.

The freshman race is expected to be a great one, with Columbia, California and Pennsylvania touted highly.

CHICAGO TO BE SCENE OF TITLE GRID GAMES

Chicago, June 25 (A.P.).—Plans to make Chicago the annual battle ground for deciding East-West football supremacy have been given impetus by hearty concurrence on the part of Coach Enoch Bagshaw of the University of Washington.

Chicago's central location makes it ideal for the games Bagshaw believes. He favors the Saturday after Thanksgiving for the contests. He would be willing to bring the Huskies here later in the collegiate season. He would not be said consider another New Years game at Pasadena, Cal., where the Huskies have played twice in recent years.

WESTERN CLAY COURT TOURNEY PROGRESSES

Indianapolis, June 25 (A.P.).—Completion of rounds before the semi-finals in all events except men's singles today occupied a half hundred players here for the Western clay court tennis championship tournament.

Pete DePaolo Is Still Favored by Many

Rockingham Motor Speedway, Salem, N. H. June 25.—Danny O'Brien Peabody favorite and Frank Elliott in their brand new Miller racers, burnt up a hundred or two seething miles before a gathering of 2,500 visitors here in the lasheeng up process of preparation for the big Independence Day classic to be held here July 5.

Fred Wagner, A. A. A. representative, who will hold the track fast during the event, has been clocking the speedsters but no one in their trials equaled the record made earlier in the week by Josh Wise and the California Comet, who whirled around at 135.33 miles per hour breaking all previous Rockingham and other American track attainments with the new small bore engines. Practically every car entered in the race is new and dealers seem to be the favorite.

Racers and their mechanics are daily studying the possibilities at Rockingham and it is predicted by Jack Leslie that the big sensation in each of the specials to be raced here July 5. The power plant of the small, bore engine with its displacement of 91.5 cubic inches, is designed rather than to rate with the power of Wagner and is comparatively better weather conditions as regards temperature than last October, Le Cain and his track associates point to as ideal for setting new speed marks.

There are ten cars more due to arrive here today and then all the entries will have checked in. Today and Saturday will be big tuning up days as will every day next week. Fred Wagner, a son of all preparations on the track. The fifty mile dash promises to be terrific even as great as the long grind of 200 miles which will follow.

Some new faces at Rockingham those of "Cap" Duff, the London lad in his shining Miller, and two other English contenders R. A. D. Eldridge and W. Douglas Hawkes have created a situation of much doubt as to who will cop the first places in the big classic. Duff knocked off third place in the Altoona affair and Eldridge in his Eldridge Special made a fine showing in the Indianapolis and Altoona events.

DePaolo is still a strong favorite among the racy fans despite newer sensations, a dirt field and other conditions. He holds the record of Rockingham made with his 122-cubic inch motor which last fall established a new record of 138 miles per hour.

OMAHA YOUTHS SURVIVE IN WEST GOLF TOURNEY

St. Louis, June 25 (A.P.)—The twenty-eighth annual trans Mississippi golf tournament at Algonquin links is in its third session today, when two strapping Omaha youths attained the semi-final with a pair of crack middle-western veterans.

Having eliminated the present champion, Chester Wolff, and a former title holder, James Manion, both of St. Louis, Jack Pollard, seventeen year old Omaha high school boy teen, went off this morning with the veteran Edward Ackerman, St. Louis golf a favorite in this part of the country. Facing an opponent equally as skilful with his shots as the rebel lads, Hedi John Goetzman, eighteen year old Omaha City champion carried his fight for championship honors through the semi-final round with a dare devil style, having created a situation of much

Two Hole Out in One During Day's Play On Links

RICHMOND, Va., June 25 (A.P.)—Two holes-in-one were scored today on the Country Club of Virginia course. Richard Peyton played a mashie shot from the eighth tee to the green and it rolled into the cup.

J. Scott Parrish, Jr., using a mid mashie, duplicated the feat on the longest third hole.

TWO TWI GAMES SCHEDULED TONIGHT

South Boston, tossed about contemptuously by the fast division clubs, makes another bid for fame stacking up against Joe Kendrick's Dorchester club at the Dorchester Town Field in a Twi-Light League contest. The Peninsula District athletes have learned how to play errorless baseball and Dorchester meets the most formidable opposition in the league.

Cambridge and Fore River meet at Russell Field, North Cambridge. It will be a play off, as the last time these participants met it ended in a 4 to 4 deadlock.

Ed Conroy, Cambridge initial sack guard, who has been named the Twi-Some run-king is an attraction in himself. He hit three home runs in one game recently.

POLO TITLE MATCHES TO OPEN IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, June 25 (A.P.)—Buffalo, Detroit, Rochester and Toronto will send polo teams here July 10 to compete against Chagrin Valley and Rockaway in preliminary matches to choose goal national championship.

Winners here will go to Lake of the Ozarks and Detroit early in August for championship matches at Chicago, June 24, for the right to enter the national meet at Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island, in August.

NEWSBOY BROWN IS FAVORITE OVER SILVA

Hollywood Cal., June 25 (A.P.)—Newsboy Brown of New York and Teddy Silva, Oakland contenders for the flyweight crown are in top form for their ten-round bout here tonight. Brown, because of a draw with Fidel La Barba, flyweight champion was a favorite with fans today. Each will enter the ring at 114 pounds.

BILLY MURPHY STOPS TONY TRAVERS IN 4TH

New Haven, June 25.—Billy Murphy of Lowell, Mass., was sent on Tony Travers of New Haven in the fourth round of a scheduled ten round bout at the Nutmeg A. C. Travers weight was 130½ and Murphy 139.

Fights Last Night

New York—Joe Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, technically knocked out Mickey Walker, former champion, St. Benny Bass, Philadelphia featherweight, knocked out Billy Kramer of New Orleans (7). Harry Cook, negro lightweight, Buffalo, N. Y. defeated Bud Ashire of Jamaica, L. I., (10). Danny Tuccitano of Mass., Jr., knocked out Jack Monroe, Omaha, negro heavyweight (6). Vincent Dundee, Baltimore lightweight outpointed Orlo Goodwin, Omaha (10). Kansas City—Sailor Burman of Kansas defeated Tod Morgan of Seattle, Washington, junior lightweight champion (10). Bat Battalino, not at stake, Johnny Ruff of Manila, P. I. knocked out Marty Kool, Kansas City, Kansas (2).

San Antonio—Joe Lohman, Toledo light weight won a decision over Chuck Burns of San Antonio (10). Charles Lopez, Toledo, O. was awarded a decision over George Sanders of Hot Springs, Ark. (10).

DUNDEE CHIEF CONTENDER FOR WELTER TITLE

New York, June 25 (A.P.)—Joe Dundee, hard hitting welterweight from Baltimore, has become the leading challenger for the title now held by Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., by scoring a technical knockout over Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J. in eight rounds.

Many predicted a victory yet few foresaw that the Baltimorean would make it so decisive as Tout scheduled for 10 rounds at Madison Square Garden last night. In 1925 Dundee had all the better of Walker in one bout but until last night neither leader had forced him to quit before the end of the scheduled limit of rounds.

Last night Mickey was not the leader he used bee and he entered the ring a 9 to 5 only favorite on which served as a target for Dundee's left and right. After the first round Dundee had all the better of it and blood flowed from the wound in Walker's nose in the eighth. The referee stepped between the men and declared the Baltimore singer the winner although Walker secured strong. Boxing writers agreed that the referee's action was proper.

Sailors and Huskies Favored

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 25 (I.N.S.)—With only three days before the regatta classic, coaches sweated up today in driving the crews into top form.

Washington and the Navy are equal favorites to win the big race on Monday.

These confined themselves to four mile workouts. California went six miles, with Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania also hitting on long spurts and a short mile pull. Only Navy and Washington rowers took a long eight mile workout.

The Columbia varsity and freshmen crews took their last brief trial before the race. No official time was taken out but several watches caught the varsity in a fraction better than twenty minutes.

The freshman race is expected to be a great one, with Columbia, California and Pennsylvania headed highly.

CHICAGO TO BE SCENE OF TITLE GRID GAMES

Chicago, June 25 (A.P.)—Plans to make Chicago the annual battle ground for deciding Eastern football supremacy have been given impetus by hearty concurrence on the part of Coach Enos Rasbaw of the University of Washington.

Chicago's central location makes it ideal for the games Rasbaw believes. He favors the Saturday after Thanksgiving for the contests but would be willing to bring the Huskies here later in the college season. He would not, he said, consider another New Years game at Pasadena, Cal. where the huskies have played twice in recent years.

WESTERN CLAY COURT TOURNEY PROGRESSES

Indianapolis, June 25 (A.P.)—Completion of rounds before the semi-finals in all events except men's singles today occupied a half hundred players here for the Western clay court tennis championship tournament.

The committee in charge of the championships announced postponement of the semi-finals of the men's singles, in which R. L. Norton of San Antonio, Tex. will engage

"Boston to Broadway," as Revealed by George M. Cohan Himself

ed in Mannington W. Va., where I made a speech to the company that if the author had listened to my suggestions and hadn't been too vain to allow me to "fix up" the play, I could very easily have turned it into a huge success. They applauded and cheered me when I made this statement but I found out years afterward that they were "kidding."

A few weeks later we played an other show called by Linda Tea nana Tuts. We opened with this troupe in Cleveland, and after a good week's business the manager jumped out with the bank roll, so we were more west along on the com monwealth arrangement, and the fol lowing Saturday night, in Tiffin, Ohio, we stranded again.

We came back to New York again and were engaged by still an other road star, Edward M. Favor, to support him in a play written by Edith Sin lair (Mrs. Favor). It was a comedy called "The Jester."

During the second week of the engagement Favor handed us our two weeks' notice and he did so I heard him say to dad:

"Jerry, I wouldn't put up with that kid of yours if his show depended on him. Take my advice and put him on a sonoanap or send him to jail. I don't care a darn what you do with him, but for heaven's sake take him away from me."

"I don't see why he's sore at me," I said to dad after listening to a long lecture on the "meaning of my ways." "I've certainly tried to be a regular fellow with him. I couldn't use "I even went so far as to offer to fix the play at free of charge."

"These people don't want their plays fixed up. What's the matter with you?" he yelled at me. "Will you, for the love of all that's good and sensible get on to yourself and quit acting a vain changing people around?"

"You're not losing faith in me, are you, dad?"

"Yes, I am," he returned "I'm losing faith in your ever being anything but a 'pest' And to add strength to this statement he slammed the lid of his trunk down with a smash and walked out of the ro m.

For the fourth time that year we journeyed back to New York, and after a long stretch of idleness ar rived at the conclusion that so far as the four act was concerned, it was a dead issue.

I announced to the gang in Union Square (and it was with a heavy heart believe me) that, owing to the demands made upon my time in other directions, I had decided to permanently retire from the stage.

"You mean you're not going to be a 'trouper' any longer?" inquired a member of a trick bicycle family.

"That's precisely what I mean," I tried to curl my lip modeled that face That's going to put an awful crimp in the show business," remarked a wire-walking leader starting pearly.

The lunch had a good laugh at this and I tried to toss it off in an indifferent manner, but I was "hurt" just the same and as soon as I could gracefully do so, I slipped away.

"I wonder why he pulled that speech?" I mu gled the thing a coupl e times before I'm a thank I started to sum myself up. Was he I've been a pain right along without knowing it?

I wasn't sympathizing with myself at all, I was honestly trying to weigh things and figure out just where I stood.

I took a bird's-eye view of all I had done on the stage—part of a panorama resume of my "troupling

Maybe he's right. I guess I'm a ham, all right. After a half hour's reflection I started back to the boarding house for the sole purpose of soaking off to my room, where I could cry to my heart's content and have the thing out with myself once and for all

One point I had already absolutely decided upon. I was never going to walk on a stage again as long as I lived.

Two minutes later something happened. Yes, sir, something happened that ruined my idea of what I Aladdin swung his lamp and the Co lan luck proved itself over to me.

As I opened the front door of the boarding house I heard dad sing out: "Here he is now I looked up and saw him flying down the stairs, followed by mother and Josie all three carrying hand luggage, advertising the fact that they were starting out somewhere in a fearful hurry.

"We've been trying to locate you for an hour," continued dad as he pushed by me, reopened the front door, and I shooed us all out. Come on We've got to get over to Brook lyn as quickly as we can We open there this afternoon in the four act—

"Zipp's Casino again?" I stopped to say.

"Zipp's Casino nothing Hyde and Behman's this time, my boy. Come on." And the four of us started scooting toward the Third Avenue Elevated station at a mile-a-minute clip.

"Hyde and Behman's? Are you kidding, dad?" I was out of breath trying to keep up with him, but was anxious to hear what it was all about.

"Never mind I'll explain later. We play Hyde and Behman a. That's good enough, isn't it?"

"How did it happen?" I whispered to Josie, as we sprang up the Elevated stairs two steps at a time.

She was too winded to answer.

grabbed mother's arm and helped her along. She was about "all in."

"Here comes a train! Hurry! Let's make it," shouted dad, and we flew through the gate out to the platform and abroad the express on our way to what proved to be the turning point in the family career.

On the way to Brooklyn, dad explained to me that Filson and Errol (then one of the leading eccentric teams of the country) had re eived word that morning that Mrs Filson a mother, who lived in Chicago, had been taken dangerously ill and that they had been forced to cancel their engagement at Hyde and Behman s and start West immediately.

It was their place in the bill we were being rushed into, and it was through the great friendship exist ing between Filson and Behman that the thing had been arranged. It was the first time in many a day that an act which had appeared at any opposition house in Brooklyn had been booked at Hyde and Behman's

Of course was a most unusual one too, owing to the fact that we had been very closely identified with "Zipp's." We realized this, and also knew that it would come as a great surprise to everybody around the Adams Street Theatre.

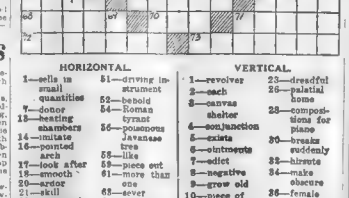
ANSWER TO PUZZLE NO. 233



Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My brother is to be married and it is to be only a family affair outside of a few of his most intimate friends. My brother wants me to ask one of my boy friends to attend the wedding. I have already asked him and he has accepted. That is, I asked him personally. Now my brother is sending out invitations, would it be proper to send one to my boy friend? He does not know the boy, in fact, but knows the bride and my brother

Would it be proper to wear black satin slippers and black stockings? We dressed will be a pearl color; the other bridesmaids' dresses will be orchid. Reader

YES, you should have an invitation mailed to your friend.

2. Black satin shoes and stockings would not at all be in harmony with the costume that you outline. In all means have all the bridesmaids wear stockings and shoes of the same shade as the dress. Take a sample of the dress to any shoe store and let will dye white satin shoes to a shade exactly like the dress. This gives unity and harmony to the costumes.

Martha Lee's Recipes

GREETINGS, Everybody!

One of the secrets of successful and economical cookery, you know, is to use fruits and vegetables liberally, when they are in season and at their lowest price. This applies right now to strawberries. There are many ways of using them other than plain with cream and shortcake. For instance, in two-crust strawberry pie, made thusly:

Two-Crust Strawberry Pie—Sift 2 cups of pastry flour with ¾ tea spoon of salt and cut in 2/3 cup of shortening with 2 knives until the shortening is cut up into bits the size of small peas. Add just enough ice water to hold it together. Line a pie plate with this

Brush the bottom of the crust over with melted shortening and dust lightly with flour to prevent the juice from soaking in. Next mix together one cup of flour, 2 tablespoon of pastry flour and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Mix this with 1 quart of strawberries

Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Fill the pie plate with this mixture, dotting all over with bits of shortening. Wet the edges of the pie crust and cover with the top crust. To prevent the juice running out, bind the edge of your pie with a two-inch wide strip of wet cloth and put tiny paper funnels or pieces of macaroni into two or three of the slits in the top crust.

Pie sealing tape is excellent for juicy pies, too. Bake in a hot oven 460 degrees until brown. Then reduce the heat to moderate (350 degrees) until the pie is done, which will be in about half hour more.

Strawberry cream pie is luscious, too. Make pastry as in the preceding recipe with ¾ cup shortening, 1¼ cups pastry flour and ½ teaspoon salt and ice water. Turn cream pie plate upside down and cover it with this crust, pricking to prevent bubbles. Bake the shell in a hot oven 18 minutes (460 degrees), then slip the shell off and put it inside the pan.

When cold, fill with whole strawberries. Spread ¾ of a cup of powdered sugar over them and cover with this big cake of thick cream whipped and sweetened. Chill in ice box before serving.

Strawberry whips: Cream together ½ cup of shortening and 1 cup of fine granulated sugar and ½ teaspoon of salt, soft and light. Add 2 eggs and beat very briskly. Mix thoroughly. Sift together 2 cups of pastry flour and 3 teaspoons of baking powder and add to the first mixture. Alternate with ½ cup of milk Last of all, ½ teaspoon of milk flakes (or vanilla if you prefer) dissolved in ½ cup of water. Bake in gem tins (375 degrees) twenty to thirty minutes, depending on the size of the muffins. This will make 18 small ones.

When cool cut out the centre of each cake (you can use the centre for making a pudding later) and fill the hollow with a mixture made as follows: Mix 1 quart of strawberries mashed with ¾ cup of powdered sugar. Drain off every bit of juice by letting the berries stand in a sieve for 15 minutes.

Then mix with 1 cup of sweetened whipped cream. Put in ice box to get ice cold before filling the plates. Place a strawberry on top for decoration.

CHAPTER XXVII.

August 7th.

EDITH has today received the large sum of ten dollars from a newspaper for the lighthouse ghost story.

I find she has used the story of the so-called ghost at Twin Hollows as a basis to work from, and that she uses my name as the owner of the property. Quite aside from a distaste for seeing my name in print, I feel that the mere fact of its publication will give it a substantiality it has hitherto lacked.

It is characteristic of the average mind often to question what it hears but to believe whole-heartedly what is read.

I find that Halliday has been quietly working along the lines opened up by Annie Cochran. He is convinced that Gordon has been going out at nights, clandestinely, and using the car to do so.

"I don't blame him for that," he said today. "The car's there and not being used. And—I'm not keen about Gordon—but from such views as I have had of Mr. Beibel, a little of him would go a long way. Gordon's disconnected the spectrometer in the way. But there's something else."

He thinks it was Gordon who set fire to the boathouse. He found a bit of waste outside the garage hanging on a limb of blue spruce there, and a similar scrap on the raised walk over the marsh to the boathouse.

"Of course, that isn't evidence, Skipper," he said, "except as a trout in the milk might be. But the stuff's there, and it needs some thinking about."

"But why?" I asked. "There has to be a reason."

"I can go a long way for one," he said thoughtfully, "and imagine he knows what he's up against in case and wants to get rid of me. But I grant that's not good. Right now my motive couldn't do that and he hoped I was inside. But that is to imply that he is guilty of the crimes, and I don't believe it."

But he added, as an afterthought: "There's one curious thing, though. That is, it may be curious. I'm not sure. The machine he's using is a Remington."

Professor Discouraged

This has been a nerve-racking day. I for one am willing to carry quits, to compromise with crime, and to say, in effect, that one murderer leaves us alone we will not disturb him.

Edith this morning, at Halliday's request, telephoned to Gordon as asked him to lunch with us. He accepted for a hurry call, and promised at 1 o'clock came down the drive did not take the fact nels and with an additional shoe of pomade on the hair.

Whether he was sane—or not we cannot tell. I do not, watching him from a window, just the way down the drive he came to a dead stop and then turned as if he had some line of goods to sell on some pretext or other. But he evidently thought better of it, looked at his watch, and came on again.

His mode is now impersonal, on us, further was during the choice of fork or spoon and otherwise to showing most of his attention to Edith. Such attention that I was he bestowed on anybody at the beginning.

"I'm a sort of wanderer," he said once, apropos of some question or statement of mine. "I stay in a place long enough to once about me and then I get the it to move on myself," he added.

And restless he was. From where he sat he had his back to the windows, but more than once he managed to turn and look out. I had the feeling that the small room enclosed him too much: that he felt somehow trapped. And more than once I found his eyes on me, and felt that he suspected me of some purpose he was attempting to discover.

Gordon Nervous

His nervousness finally infected me, and even Jane began to show signs of distress. The small lunch party, for some reason she could not understand, was going badly. Only Edith stayed up well, and pushed aside her plate at last and with her elbows on the table and her chin in her hands, said:

"And now tell us about the night you were hurt."

He was lighting a cigarette at the moment, and he halted the match in mid-air, and glanced from her to me.

"I'll do that," he said, with his twisted smile, "if Mr Porter will tell me how he and the doctor both happened to be such Johnnies on the spot."

But he carried that no further, and although the covert insolence of the speech brought the color to both my face, she continued to smile at him. "There isn't much to tell," he went on. "The fellow got into the house all right, I turned to go to the door and head him off, and that's all I remember."

"But you rang the bell first, didn't you?"

Whether because he hated to acknowledge that call for help, or for some reason none of us can determine tonight, he hesitated.

"Yes," he said finally, "I was pretty well excited, but I suppose I did."

But the subject of the house itself he was more fluent, showing a considerable curiosity as to its history, and inquiring with more particularity than delicacy as to the circumstances surrounding Uncle Horace's death.

"The Cochran woman has a line of talk about it," he gave as his opinion on Seems to think he was a—or something.

I had a go of the doctor's verdict at once to me, and resented his considering that. But almost immediately he asked me if I had tried to open the door after we left the house, and a motor engine go

I had believe it could be done," he said with his sidewise glance at me. "He's a good earn, the doctor."

From the upstairs windows Merry and Helen watched Mr. Hepworth lift Ted out of his car and carry him as if he were a baby, across the lawn.

Mr. Hepworth's father owned the wholesale grocery store where Dad was a clerk.

Helen and Bill

Bill was big and broad shouldered and blond. Not good looking, but nice looking in a quiet pleasant sort of way. His collars were always too big for him and showed his large Adam's apple, and his suits always looked as if they ought to have the flour dusted from them.

Merry had never liked him, but now as she saw him lay Dad tenderly on the bed, she suddenly had a warm, friendly feeling for him.

In a very few minutes Helen was in a dreadful state.

Helen began to cry as she sat down on the bed beside him and began to unlace his shoes.

"You'll have to help me with him, Bill," she sobbed after a minute. "My fingers are all thumbs. I'm so nervous: I'll telephone for a doctor. Oh, I wish Nonna were here."

She got up from the bed and turned toward the door.

And then an astonishing thing happened. She turned abruptly to Bill Hepworth and threw herself on his breast, crying sobbingly:

"Oh, Bill, I'm so glad you're here!"

Merry gazed at her, too startled to speak or move.

But Bill Hepworth didn't seem at all surprised. He put one arm around Helen's square shoulders and patted the top of her head with the other.

There, there there! Brace up," he said gruffly enough. "This is no time to break down my girl. Hand me ter telephone for the doctor right away."

Helen dried her eyes and walked out of the room without another word. Merry followed her down the stairs, where Jinny was waiting for her.

"What's the matter with him?" Jinny whispered and Merry shook her head and shrugged her shoulders.

They sat there on the bottom step of the stairs while Helen phoned for Dr. Bateman, and peered at each other with wide open eyes.

"I should think you two could find something to do instead of a thing there like bumps on a log," Helen said to them sharply as she brushed by them on her way upstairs. "Can't one of you call Cora and ask her to come here?"

But neither of them stirred. They just sat there with their arms around each other and listened to the mother indignantly remarked that she was perfectly justified in her act.

"She claimed it was a mother's precaution to investigate all her daughters actions." CLAIRE."

I shall not go into the subject of the right of your friend a mother to read her daughters' diaries. Your friend should have more self respect. I would undoubtedly have presented her letter to her daughter, and left the matter entirely in her hands. Her daughter would then have had the opportunity to open the others letters herself or to explain it all, and I think in the latter case she would have come to her mother and asked her help in the matter. Then the mother would have been in a position to advise her daughter, and the daughter would have appreciated her mother's motive and interest in her welfare.

Of course the very primary rules of good breeding demand respect for the privacy of correspondence. Every decent person would feel that the letters were not intended for them to read, and would refuse to look at them. Many a girl has left home because she was driven to it by the prying curiosity of her mother, who had no business to read them.

If you want to know a person of your parents so that it will be helpful to you in the years to come, you must treat them as friends, and not as children. I hope you will do so.

A wife or husband has no more right to open the other's letters than a stranger has. It is a despicable act, and one that can only result in estrangement and misery. Don't do it.

How Respect of Privacy Protects Romance By Beatrice Fairfax

THE following letter does not present directly a problem of love. But it suggests a distorted idea of the power and privilege that family affection gives, which is responsible in thousands of cases for the wreck of romance and affection.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Much argument has arisen in the family of a friend of mine over this problem:

My friend, a young woman of 21 who has been keeping a diary, discovered one day that in the chest where she keeps her diary had been forced open. On questioning her brother she learned that he and her mother had read the diary.

The brother made neither excuse nor apology for his behavior. He was legally right.

Whether she possesses the legs under your in a point of law. I think the daughter is entitled to some consideration when they feel by trying to appreciate her mother's motive and interest in her welfare.

"I wish Nonna were here now," Merry said.

She went to the porch to look for her, and there she was coming up Myrtle street with her arms full of bundles.

"Nonna have you been?" Merry asked her running to meet her.

Nonna gave a half-ashamed little laugh. "I've been downtown," she said. "I took back a pair of shoes that Cadge gave me for a present, and changed it for some things that I needed. What do you think? Dad's been sick! Ten dollars for a pair of shoes! Ten dollars for perfect nonsense now."

Merry was trying to show up her escape to tell her mother about Dad, but stopped at the sight of Nonna's blood-stained face.

"What's the matter with you?" she asked anxiously. "Nonna, you've been crying! Has anything happened to Dad?"

"Dead!" Merry cried, her heart standing still with fear. "Dad dead! Nonna, you don't mean—"

"Dead!" she began, but Nonna did not wait to hear the rest of the sentence. She stopped her mother's mouth with her hand, and rushed into the house.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

A PROMINENT health official says that the American public would have fewer sleepless nights if we had more deaf and dumb cats.

HOWLING felines can disturb more people's rest than the first of the month.

ONE man suggested that we gather up all the stray cats and send them abroad to take singing lessons.

WHAT do we care if our cats keep Europe awake?

THE anti-vivisection laws in this country prevent us from amputating their vocal cords.

IT'S too bad that nature didn't equip cats with ingrown voices.

ONE man kept the cats off his back fence by putting the fence in the basement.

ANOTHER fellow attached high voltage wires to the top of it and the cats began singing by electricity.

EVERY maltese in the neighborhood became a reproducing grand.

THEY got so bad that he had to throw them mice dipped in chloroform.

A TABBY makes a wonderful pet but not in the middle of the night.

ONE guy said he wouldn't listen to Mary Garden sing at three o'clock in the morning.

A BROCKTON man nearly lost his life the other night on account of a cat. He threw his shoe at it and forgot to take his foot out of it.

THE only way he could get any sleep was to lie on the floor and pull the bed over him.

BUT the howling got so bad that he had to throw on a couple more beds.

THE most depressing thing in the world is a couple of cats on the front porch having a tonsil contest.

ONE guy always keeps two hammers under his pillow in case they get too noisy. If he misses the cat with the first hammer, he uses the second one on himself.

THERE'S only one sure way to keep a cat from howling at night. Kill him in the daytime.

DAILY SHORT STORY

SILK STOCKINGS

By Mary Henke

MARCIA sat holding the pair of gray silk stockings in her hand. Her eyes were black with despair. Two runners had started, and though she had sewed them ever so carefully, they showed in untidy ridges. Clearly they would not do.

It was her last pair of silk stockings and there are times when the last pair of silk stockings means a tragedy.

When you must look for a job and you have only money enough to pay for your room for another week, then the dissolution of a pair of stockings may lead to anything—surrender, defiance of fate.

Marcia wavered. At times she felt that she could not go on. This was the last straw on her weary burden of anxiety and failure. The consolidation of two stores had left her out of a job. Since then she had tramped the streets, studied want ads, written letters of application in her best style, with no result. Nobody wanted a mature saleswoman. You would have though, from the crowd of applicants always ahead of her, that half the people in New York worked in music stores.

It was necessary for her to look well. A young woman in a music store is expected to have an artistic look. But where can you get nowadays if you don't wear silk stockings?

She had not had enough to eat for weeks, and her courage and vitality were low. For a black moment temptation struggled with her. If she turned on the gas and lay down, who would care.

There had been a boy who ate at the same restaurant she did, a fair, round-shouldered boy with an outdoor look. They had noticed each other and exchanged friendly glances. One day the waiter had put him at her table. After that they always ate together, she'properly paying for her own check. But then she lost her job and she couldn't afford to go to the restaurant any more; besides she didn't want the boy to see her with the stigma of failure on her. She had never seen him again. It was funny he never would. After all, what did it matter? She was alone, she had nothing to keep her going any longer. She had better be dead.

But at the thought, something revolted in her. "Fight it out," she told herself. "You came from pioneer stock; they'd be ashamed of a quitter."

Well, what should she do? Stake all her remaining money on a pair of stockings. And then perhaps find no work and be homeless as well as penniless.

Her chin set at a defiant angle. "I'll take them," she threw at conscience and caution.

Down the hall lived a pretty, fair girl, who was in a musical comedy chorus. She had innumerable pairs of stockings—Marcia had heard her complaining of the fact that she had to buy them for herself.

"She won't miss one pair," Marcia argued, "and when I get work I'll replace them."

At this hour the girl was out at rehearsals. Marcia slipped down the hall and tried the door. It opened, Marcia crept into the room.

In the tiny bedroom clothes were scattered about as if the owner had dressed in a hurry. A tumbled bureau drawer stood half open. Marcia opened it carefully and found in her hand a new pair of silver gray stockings. She took them out and was closing the drawer when a voice made her jump and turn white. The stockings dropped from her cold fingers. She turned slowly, in terror. The chorus girl stood looking at her calmly.

"Well," she repeated, "what are you up to, kid?"

Marcia was too frightened to answer.

"Sit down," the voice was brisk and not unkind. Marcia was trembling so that she was glad to sink into a chair. The girl's eyes went to the pair of stockings on the floor, back to Marcia.

"You were stealing a pair of stockings, eh? Why?"

Marcia cringed. It was not pleasant to hear herself addressed as a thief.

She answered timidly, "I had none—my last pair wore out—I'm out of a job. I had to have them."

"I see—" the chorus girl nodded sympathetically, "I was in that same predicament once myself. If it hadn't been for the leading lady helping me out, I might have tried what you did. I was desperate, too—"

She put a hand on Marcia's arms. "Look here. You knew I was here. Why didn't you come down and tell me your troubles. We've all been through it, in the profession—"

She went over and picked up the stockings and handed them to Marcia. "Take them, kid. I hope they bring you luck. What's your line?"

"I worked in a music store."

Marcia nodded "Pretty well."

"Dance?"

"Yes," answered Marcia.

"I may be able to get you a job in the chorus," said the other. "I'll see what I can do."

Marcia thanked her timidly. She had no idea that she could succeed in the chorus. She had no desire to. But she would not have refused anything her benefactor offered.

The door swung open. A stock voice began, "Say, sis," and stopped.

Marcia turned from white to red and back again. She and the fair young man stared at each other. Pleasure danced in his eyes. "Why, say," he exclaimed, "I didn't know you knew my sister."

"I didn't," Marcia started to say, but the other interposed. "Sure we've been fellow-sufferers at this boarding house for a long time. Ready to go back to the farm, buddy?"

"Oh, I don't know," he hesitated. "I may wait a day or two."

"Well, since you've got our suitcase with you," she began, then looked from his face to Marcia's. "Excuse me," she said obviously. "I've got a letter to write."

The young man approached Marcia. "Where did you go?"

She began breathlessly, "She shielded me. I came here to steal—a pair of stockings. That's the kind I am."

He reached out and drew her into his arms. "You poor little darling, tell me about it."

The sister emerged tactfully some time later. Her tact was wasted, for the young man continued to hold Marcia in his arms.

"So you prefer farm life to the chorus," said the sister. "Well, there's no accounting for taste."

Marcia and the young man smiled at each other.

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"I'M sure that any man who has been brought up on a farm will agree with me when I say that there's no place in the world where a little boy can have as much fun as he can on a farm.

Bobby was certainly of that opinion the Summer we spent at his Uncle John's farm. And he said that he thought his Cousin Jack had more fun than anybody he ever knew.

"Why, Foxy Grandpa," declared Bobby, "just look at all the pets that Jack can have. Think of the poor boys in the city, who can't have any besides cats and dogs. In the apartment house the best you can do are canaries and gold fish, and they're certainly not exciting."

"I quite agree with you, Bobby," said I, "because it really isn't fair to cats or dogs to keep them in an apartment."

"That's just what I think," said Bobby. "But look at Jack. Why, he even has a pet pig."

"And he's a cute little fellow, too," I laughed. And just at that moment Jack came walking up the path in front of the house with Wiggy, the pig, following at his heels as if he were a dog.

"How long have you had Wiggy," asked Bobby.

"Since he was a tiny little pink baby," replied Jack.

"He must have been cute," said Bobby.

"He was," answered Jack. "I'll never forget the morning father brought him in. His mother had died in the night and Wiggy was nearly frozen to death."

"Oh, my!" sympathized Bobby. "What did you do with him?"

"I wrapped him up in a warm woolen shawl and put him by the kitchen fire and then I fed him with hot milk out of a baby's nursling bottle until he was old enough to eat regular food."

"No wonder he loves you, Jack," I said, "and likes to follow you around."

Wiggy had special privileges. He didn't live in a sty with the rest of the pigs, but spent his days in the orchard, where he had a grand time eating apples as they fell from the trees. In fact, I think he was the happiest pig I ever saw in all my life. But Jack had to be very careful about fastening the orchard gate, because if he didn't Wiggy always went exploring over the farm, where he was apt to get lost.

I'll tell you what happned one Sunday morning when Jack happened to leave the orchard gate open. Jack's mother and father, Jack, Bobby and I went to church to a dear little church down the road not far from the farm. Bunny said he'd like to go to church, but he always felt embarrassed because people stared at him so. So he decided to stay home and look over the Sunday papers.

We were sitting there in church and the first part of the services was over, and the minister had just started reading the sermon. It was a lovely Summer day, all the doors and windows were open, and the only noise in the church besides the minister's voice was the humming of insects outside and the chirping of the birds in the trees which grew around the churchyard.

But suddenly there was another noise. And the way Jack and Bobby looked at each other, I know exactly what it was. In a moment I guessed it myself. Because up the aisle on the bare wooden floor of the church came the pitter-patter of four sharp little hoofs, and as they grew nearer we heard a snirfing and a grunting, and there, standing right by our pew, was Wiggy.

He blinked his little eyes at Jack and then moved right in and, with a contented grunt, curled up at Jack's feet and settled himself for a nap. He was happy. He had found his little master.

Four Jacks's faces turned as scarlet as the crimson ramblers on the altar as he got up quietly and led piggy out.

"I've heard of Mary's little lamb following her to school," said the old minister when church was over, "but I never heard of a little pig following a boy to church."

Little girl suffers five years from unusual skin trouble
Resinol relieves and heals

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 9:—"Sometime ago my little girl's whole body became dry and scaly. The skin where her shoes were laced and under her toes cracked open, which made it very painful. We were advised to keep her skin soft with a good cold cream or pure lard and for five years I have spent many hours and used numerous half-pound cans of cold cream, but to no avail. As she grew older the trouble gradually became worse until I remembered that when she was a baby I had cured a bad case of eczema by using Resinol Soap and Ointment.

So for three weeks she has had no other soap on her skin and I cannot begin to tell you how much improvement has been made. Her feet are almost normal and the rest of her body is better than it has been for years. Up to this time I had never been able to bathe her oftener than was absolutely necessary, but now a bath with your wonderful soap actually makes her skin moist and rosy, whereas before, soap and water made her look and feel parched and dry even after a liberal application of grease." (Signed) Mrs. Edwina Vandestreet, 1323 Alden St., N. E.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

LOVE turns a woman's past into a shadow—and her future into a rainbow.

The only time some women can get a man or a cue "going" to suit them, is when they get good and mad—and don't care WHAT happens.

* * *

In most things, a dog is far wiser than a man. For instance, a dog loves you because you love him—but a man usually loves you because you don't.

* * *

The surest way to lose the wrong man and the wrong woman together, is by trying to keep them apart.

* * *

You can always tell by their expressions, whether it's a nice, polite, patient salesman who is teaching a woman to drive—or just her husband.

A man's heart is like a sponge—always soaked with emotions and sentiments, of which he can squeeze a little bit out for every pretty woman.

* * *

No woman can ever get used to the sudden shock of a man or a car "back-firing," when, as far as she can see, she "didn't do a thing in the world" to cause it.

A man doesn't "get married." He gradually "becomes" married by degrees, just as he becomes bald or middle-aged or tipsy or rich. A happy marriage is not "made in heaven"; it is evolved or developed like a good habit or the rheumatism.

* * *

Among a woman's "suppressed sires," the most intense and insistent one is the desire to let a man that she's "suppressing" some-

'BIG BUSINESS' GIVEN WARNING ON TRUST LAWS

By FRANK E. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

W. J. Donovan, assistant to Attorney-General Coolidge, in charge of trust prosecutions in his speech before the New York State bankers' convention at Quebec warned that big business must not violate the trust laws. Bears have been using this as an argument in their favor, but so far no attempt has been made to make it specific. I hear that renewal of government suits against holding interests has been threatened. Colonel Donovan also referred Prof. W. Z. Ripley's warning against stocks with non-voting power. It would not surprise me if the Harvard authority some day gave out a list of such stocks for public scrutiny, particularly if there is any suspicion of the practice of issuing such stocks.

Owen D. Young

Owen D. Young, former Boston lawyer, now vice-president of the big General Company — one of the latter big business men to get college honors with his LL. D. from Princeton. Mr. Young is not a Princeton man, but was graduated from St. Lawrence University and the Boston University Law School. He is known as "the great statesman of business."

Two official sheets, one of the Boston Stock Exchange, the old and big General Electric Co. is one of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange dated June 4, 1885, show some interesting quotations. The Boston Stock Exchange sheet was distributed with the compliments of Lee, Higginson & Co., 40 State street, and showed not sixteen transactions to have taken place that day. Only one bid and asked prices show some striking quotations for mill issues. Massachusetts Cotton Mills was 1012½ bid; Naumkeag 137 bid against present price of around 151. Pacific was 2625 bid and 2160 asked.

The par value of Amoskeag, Hamilton and Lawrence Manufacturing was $1,000. In the railroad list Michigan Central was 94 bid 115 asked. This would sound strange with present prices around $1,000. Of the mining stocks now listed, Franklin was 7 bid and Quincy 21 bid. The most interesting part of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange sheet is additional which were reported by Townsend, Whelan & Co., was the notice "authorized list of company to the purchases of the late President, James Buchanan."

WHY UTAH APEX LOWERED PAYMENT ON ITS STOCK

Decision of directors of Utah-Apex Mining Co. to reduce the quarterly dividend on its stock to 75 cents a share to 25 cents was prompted by declining earnings due to lower average price of bullion, the directors say. The price of lead during the first part of this quarter and policy of paying for the construction of the new concentrating plant from current earnings.

The company is pushing vigorously the construction of its mill, to cost $350,000, and expects to complete by late summer, and it is desirous of paying for this new plant from earnings rather than accept loans from the present cash reserve.

State Street Notes

DIRECTORS of Briggs Manufacturing Co., which has cotton mills in Jewett City and Voluntown, Ct., have voted to liquidate completely.

PRACTICALLY all departments of Pacific Mills print works will be closed from July 3 until July 5 for annual stock-taking.

PACIFICS cotton and worsted departments will be closed from June 30 until July 5.

Stock Analysis

Corn Products Refining Company, which was founded in 1906 as a consolidation of several companies, is engaged in the production of starch, glucose, sugar and syrup.

The Corn Products Refining Company operates manufacturing plants at Argo, Illinois and Kansas City, Missouri, these plants being able to handle about 175,000 bushels of corn daily.

The profits of this company during the past few years have been large, they have been since. Nevertheless, net earnings have held at a sizable figure and in the best year being 1924 when common stockholders under a change in the capital structure received $100 per value stock with a par value of $25 in exchange for each $100 par value share held.

Dividends of 8 per cent were paid on the old common stock in 1920, 1921 and 1922.

The new stock has paid $2 a year, which is equivalent to 10 per cent on the old stock.

Earnings last year, however, were less than in 1924 by about three million dollars, but during the first quarter of 1926 earnings amounted to 90 cents a share on the common stock, as compared with 53 cents a share in the first three months of 1925.

INCREASE IS SHOWN IN HUB WOOL RECEIPTS

Receipts of wool, in pounds, for the week ended and including Wednesday, as compiled at the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange, compared with the same week last year, are as follows:

	1926	1925
Domestic	6,238,500	2,615,286
Foreign	843,700	977,900
Totals	7,082,200	3,593,186

Receipts of 7,082,200 pounds compare with 4,333,900 pounds for the preceding week, of which 2,920,900 pounds were domestic wool.

Receipts of wool, in pounds, from and including Jan. 1, 1926, compared with the same period last year, are as follows:

	1926	1925
Domestic	61,561,400	43,193,300
Foreign	15,335,600	7,431,800
Totals	76,897,000	50,625,100

Shipments last week, excluding those by water, were for the week ended and including June 23, are as follows:

	Pounds
Boston & Maine	1,000,000
New York Central	211,000
New Haven	216,000
All others	3,046,000
Total	4,473,000
Shipments previous week	681,000
Shipments same week last year	2,321,000
Shipments since Jan. 1	60,028,000
Shipments same period last year	72,787,000

Shipments of wool for the week ended and including June 23, therefore, are 2,669,200 pounds smaller than receipts for the same period. Shipments since Jan. 1, 1926, are 104,421,800 pounds smaller than receipts for the same period.

A Member of the Family

Porto Rico, Needing Help and Guidance, Brings Her Problems to Uncle Sam

Porto Rico, least difficult of Uncle Sam's wards, is impelled to bring to the attention of the Government at Washington its three major worries of the moment and to ask the Federal Government for immediate assistance.

The troubles of the American citizens of Porto Rico appear to be quite grave enough. In the first place, approximate 400,000 Porto Ricans, out of a wage-earning population of 800,000, are out of work. The chief industry is agriculture, the major crop sugarcane, and the price of raw sugar has been extremely low.

In the opinion of leading citizens, the time has come to convert the island into an industrial community. In area about one-tenth as big as Maine, Porto Rico has TWICE AS MANY PEOPLE. It asks the Federal Government for an "industrial survey," to determine its possibilities in the way of industries and manufactures.

A SECOND problem confronting the island discovered and named by Columbus—and which is geographically nearer to Boston than the State of Iowa—concerns the public health. A large percentage of the population, especially in the rural communities, is suffering from anemia and malaria. To cope with THIS problem, the people of Porto Rico ask for "adequate financial aid."

The third cause of distress on the American island in the West Indies is one not entirely unknown in the United States proper, more particularly since the World War. Taxes are not only too high but actually beyond the ability of the people to pay.

There is NO complaint that Uncle Sam has not been a good old Uncle and Porto Rico appreciates all that has been done for her. In 1899, the percentage of her people who were illiterate was 83; today it is less than 55. When Spain ceded the island to us, 28 years ago, only 8 per cent of the children attended school; five years ago, 45 per cent. of all Porto Ricans between the ages of 8 and 17 years were being taught the Three R's, at least.

But "public improvements" have come a little too fast and altogether too profusely for the capacity of the Porto Rican pocketbook and, while most of them appear to have been almost exclusively for the benefit of the cities and towns, the man on the farm has been asked to pay for them. The annual expense account of the island is in excess of $18,000,000, requiring payments which are CONSIDERABLY HIGHER THAN THE TOTAL REVENUE. The debt of the insular government is $27,371,000. There is a treasury deficit of $5,000,000.

A committee of seven representative Porto Ricans, representing the Association of Sugar Producers, the Association of Agriculturists and the Chamber of Commerce, asks that a commission of experts be sent down to make a study of economic conditions and public finances (1) with the purpose of determining the capacity of the people for taxing purposes and (2) to recommend a plan for efficient and economical administration. In addition, the Federal Government is asked for aid and co-operation in order that Porto Rico may effect a consolidation of its public debt by means of a loan sufficient to refund the island's bonded indebtedness and liquidate the present deficit.

The Porto Ricans elect their own legislators and choose a "resident commissioner," who has a voice—but no vote—in the House of Representatives at Washington. Their Governor, Attorney-General and Commissioner of Education are appointed by the President of the United States. While the power to make laws and vote appropriations is vested in the people the USE of such power is limited and directed by the Executive.

Considering Uncle Sam's great generosity in directions where he appears to be without direct responsibility it would appear to be little indeed that our friends and brothers of Porto Rico ask for an industrial survey, the study of economic conditions and public finances by a board of experts, a public health appropriation to fight anemia and malaria, and, finally, aid and co-operation in carrying out a consolidation of the public debt.

Besides being a member of the family, Porto Rico is a mighty good customer. In 1899, her imports from the United States were valued at $3,954,369; in 1925, the value of these imports was $79,349,618. To the United States, in '99, Porto Rico shipped commodities worth $3,457,567; last year, she sent us $86,411,792 worth, mostly sugar.

SOME fine day, in all likelihood, Porto Rico will be added to the States. Meanwhile, her condition must continue to be that of a DEPENDENCY, "a territory or State subject or tributary to a stronger State." As such, she is well within her RIGHTS in appealing to the "stronger State" for help and guidance. When her requests are so altogether moderate as they appear to be in the present instance Uncle Sam may well be quick as well as generous.

"Old" Music Hall

Where Its $60,000 Organ Is

Elderly Bostonians who treasure their memories of old Music Hall will read with interest the announcement that, in connection with Methuen's celebration next week of its 200th anniversary, Mr. Arthur T. Walker will open Serlo Organ Hall to the public for half-hour recitals.

Serlo Organ Hall is part of the great estate of the late Edward F. Searles; its organ, described as "one of the largest in the world," is that which was built in Germany early in the 1860's for Boston's Music Hall. It was dedicated on the night of Monday, November 2nd, 1863, among the organists being B. J. Lang, of Old South Church and the Handel and Haydn Society; John K. Paine, musical instructor at Harvard; George W. Morgan, organist of Grace Church, New York, and John H. Wilcox, organist at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Brought to Boston at a cost of $60,000, the great organ remained a part of Music Hall until 1884, when the demand for "more stage room" led to its sale at public auction for $5,000. It was taken down, packed in boxes, placed in storage and in 1897 was again sold by auction, this time to Mr. Searles.

All that is left of the original instrument, two generations ago one of the wonders of the music world, are the case and the pipes, but it is still the "old Music Hall organ," and Mr. Walker's generous act is not unlikely to increase the number of Boston folk who will want to visit Methuen on July 3rd, 4th and 5th.

ALL PROSPERITY IS TWO-SIDED

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT should be remembered that the cause of prosperity in a country is not only its ability to produce, but its ability to consume.

America is prosperous not only because its labor is efficient, it has great skill, and produces a large quantity of goods, but also because it contains a very large proportion of people who want a great many things.

The superiority of America over Europe is not only caused by the fecundity of the American workman, but also by the supremacy of American wants.

Recent figures show that real wages in the United States, that is, wages in terms of food, clothes and rent, says George W. Hinman, are double the real wages in Great Britain and three or four times the real wages on the continent of Europe. This is due not only to our enormous supplies, but equally due to our enormous demand. In the prosperity of a country must be taken into account its ability to manufacture and transport, but equally important is its ability to consume.

The advertisements in the newspapers are constantly creating new desires among our people. They are stimulating the want for more and better things and thus creating an enormous market for our products. Thus there is direct connection between the superior newspapers of the United States and its superior prosperity.

Whatever induces a people to want more and better goods is valuable, as well as whatever stimulates them to produce more and better goods.

It must always be remembered that prosperity is two-edged. It must include a sharp demand as well as a sharp supply. Because the people of this country live so well and ask so many luxuries, there is a constant demand for the goods we produce.

We sell much goods abroad and the profits from our external trade are considerable. But those profits are small compared with the advantage of our internal consumption. Andrew Carnegie said some years ago that the Pennsylvania Railroad alone carries more goods than the entire shipping of Great Britain.

PROMOTE GOODWILL IN YOUR OWN HOME

Do you feel that there is something lacking in your family life?

It is hard to say what it is, for you seem to have as much as others.

But there is not such a close bond of fellowship between you and members of your household as you would like.

In your discontented state you blame the others, but not yourself.

Perhaps you lack the spirit of good fellowship when it comes to those whose interest you should have at heart and that is why they seem so far away.

If you are honest with yourself you might find that it is little things about yourself or little words that you have spoken which have made a rift that cools the atmosphere when you are around.

You want your family and those near you to reach a certain degree of perfection, but you are unwilling to make the necessary sacrifice to bring it about, perhaps.

What is it that you are failing to give in your home life?

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS is the day of short-cuts and easy-way out.

We are instructed how to attain success in six lessons.

Perfect beauty culture is mastered in a month, salesmanship comes in neat weekly doses which any moron can assimilate. In short, every department of life has been prepared for us in pretty packets with all toil and discomfort removed from the same.

And yet, in spite of these ingenious devices which should make life easy to take, we still continue to fail—we still continue to be stupid, and homely, lonely and awkward and confused. And life is just as hard to take as it was three billion years ago. In fact, regardless of all our modern improvements, it seems even harder to take.

It is possible that we've left something out of the formula?

Is there something missing for lack of which our best laid schemes gang all agley?

There is.

All Facts at Hand

The old-fashioned virtue of ENDURANCE is lacking. We make no allowance for ENDURANCE in any of these delightful, highly efficient programs.

We're long exactly how to be energetic, magnetic, brisk, alert, canny—

We have the most exact instruction, physico-analysis, soul rhythm and other spiritual daily dozens—

We have the most elaborate data on how to talk, walk, sleep, eat, pray, exercise, beat the market and brush our teeth—

But nowhere can we find instructions on how to ENDURE.

In fact, the very name isn't mentioned. Theoretically, there is no necessity for endurance in our modern, six-cylinder program. If all the directions are followed, you'll be so powerful and successful, and in such high standing with God and man you'll have nothing to endure. Thus we can easily see that the necessity for endurance is really a sign of failure. You haven't made the grade. The very fact that you are facing pain, loneliness, loss, despair, proves that. So reasons the economist of the twentieth century.

By no possible contriving can pain and difficulty be eliminated from life. As long as we have bodies which ache and hearts which bleed and minds which become tangled we will have trouble with those bodies and hearts and minds. And even if we could become supermen and abolish our own troubles, we would be involved in troubles of those who were not supermen.

We would still be bothered by striking miners in England, and crying babies at home. We would still be confounded by sickness and sin and death.

Just One Cure

And the only cure for that inevitable trouble and confusion is the old-fashioned virtue of ENDURANCE.

There's nothing peppy or modern or dramatic about endurance. There's no short cut to it or through it. You can't learn how to do it or undo it in six lessons. It is something which each human has to work out for himself and through dull, heavy days and mocking nights. It's the most remorseless and monotonous of all the virtues.

This is why ENDURANCE has become so unpopular in these spectacular days. We don't like slow, obscure methods of tackling things. We don't want to work without applause or immediate profit. We want action. And there's no action in endurance. We want results! and we must forget results during the grim trial of endurance.

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "THE POWER OF GENTLE WOMEN."

A WOMAN MAY BE SURE
OF A MAN,
BUT she should never
Let him SEE IT.
It DISCONCERTS him.
For NO MAN is ever
QUITE sure of himself
(When it comes to LOVE), and he does
NOT CARE to be ANTICIPATED.
MOST men are inclined to Think FAITHFULNESS
To ONE woman is
AN ACCOMPLISHMENT,
And NO MAN likes
To have his BEST efforts
Taken for GRANTED.
It is HARD TO KNOW
WHICH type of wife
Is the MORE irritating
To A MAN—the one
Who assumes he is Always likely to do
WRONG, or the one who
Assumes he is NOT CAPABLE.
A WISE WOMAN handles
Her husband with
KID GLOVES.
And a LITTLE kidding goes
A LONG way.

A Statue to a Woman

It Honors France as It Honors Sarah Bernhardt

THIS STATUE OF SARAH BERNHARDT, GREAT FRENCH ACTRESS, IS TO BE ERECTED IN THE PLACE MALESHERBES.

Sarah Bernhardt, a really great actress and artist of Jewish blood, represented the talent of the French nation and was honored by France, as she deserved to be, in her lifetime.

Now that she is dead the statue shown here is to be placed in one of the great public squares of Paris as an inspiration to young artists of whom so many are produced by the genius of France.

Giving a place of honor in her greatest city to this greatest actress of modern times, the people of France honor themselves as well as Sarah Bernhardt. Incidentally they set a good example to the rest of the world which honors great MEN that usually FORGET THEIR MOTHERS.

The Three H's

The National Safety Council, after a careful study of automobile accidents throughout the United States, makes the announcement that the causes may succinctly and euphoniously be condensed to three things.

The three H's contribute over seventy-five per cent. of all accidents.

They are Hooch, Hugging and Haste.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The humblest citizen of all the land, when clad in the armor of a righteous cause is stronger than all the hosts of Error. —Bryan.

Where there is a sorrow there is holy ground.—Wilde.

There is many a rich stone laid up in the bowels of the earth, many a fair pearl laid up in the bosom of the sea, that never was seen, nor never will be. —Hall.

Better to hunt in fields for health unbought
Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught.
The wise for cure on exercise depend;
God never made his work for man to mend. —Dryden.
